Marines and GIs Launch First Offensive On Southern Front; Reds Counterattack

Bomb-Laden B-29 Crashes; Blast Kills 17, Injures 60

Gen. Travis, Chief Of West Coast Base, Dead; Trailer Area Swept by Explosion

Fairfield-Suisun Air Base, Calif., Aug. 6 (AP).—Seventeen men were known dead, two were missing and 60 persons hurt as a giant bomb-laden B-29 crashed, burned and exploded here.

Had the bomber fallen 100 feet to the north, it would have smashed into a trailer area where 200 service families slept.

Among the dead was the famed flier, Brig. Gen. Robert F. Travis, commander of the Fairfield-Suisun base and the Ninth Heavy Bomber Wing.

The flaming explosion of the 10 or 12 500-pound demolition bombs the plane carried shattered more than half of 50 automobiles and trailers parked about 150 feet from the crash, at 11:30 o'clock last night.

Felt 30 Miles Away

The explosion was felt 30 miles away and the cloud of fire that billowed from 8000 gallons of gasoline could be seen for 65 miles. Fairfield-Suisun Air Base is 35 miles northeast of San Francisco.

The known dead included 10 of the 20 men aboard the B-29. Two others aboard were missing. The other seven bodies recovered were believed to be those of air base fire fighters, caught in the explosion, which blasted a crater 200 yards across and 6 feet deep. Three of the dead were definitely identified as fire fighters.

The bomber had just left the 8000-foot runway when the pilot told the control tower two of his four engines were running wild and he couldn't retract his landing gear. He tried to turn back to the field, but crashed a little more than a mile from the west end of the runway.

Interval Saved Lives

There was an interval—some say 10 minutes, some say 20—between the crash and the explosion. This enabled residents of the Air Force trailer camp to flee.

A wisp of fire churned into billowing clouds of flame. The great wing tanks burst. The flames torched higher.

Then the bombs let go.

Trailers were flattened, one witness said, "like a giant had stepped on them."

Seven fire-fighting trucks caught the fury of the explosion. They

WRECKAGE—More than half of a colony of 50 automobiles and trailers were ruined by the explosion of huge demolition bombs after crash of a B-29 at Fairfield-Suisun Air Base, Calif. Veteran Killed, Eight Injured In 2-Car Crash

Driver Critically Hurt In Second Accident as Auto Upsets in Chase

A Purple Heart veteran of World War II was killed and eight persons were injured at 10:30 a. m. yesterday when two cars collided at the intersection of Route 301 and Route 4, near Upper Marlboro, Md.

Frank Joseph Privitera, 25, of 408 G st. ne., was pronounced dead at the scene by Dr. James I. Boyd, Prince Georges County medical examiner.

Privitera had a plate in his head and had been receiving regular treatments at Walter Reed Hospital as the result of machine gun bullet wounds received in Italy in 1944.

In 'Critical' Condition

Of the eight injured, one was reported in "critical" condition, another in "very serious" condition.

Prince Georges County police said one car was driven by Thomas A. Hanger, 16, of 526 H st. ne. It turned over four or five times. Hanger, Privitera and three other youths were thrown from the car.

At the wheel of the second car, police said, was James Harrison, 27, of Baltimore. Harrison's car caught fire but Harrison and six passengers, all of Baltimore, were thrown clear.

Four ambulances were called to rush the injured to hospitals.

While Privitera's body was being removed to a funeral home in Upper Marlboro, ambulances sped Hanger and the three boys who had been riding with him to Casualty Hospital.

By a strange quirk of fate, one youth, Robert Rohme, 18, of 501 2d st. ne., who had been in Hanger's car, suffered a fractured left arm about an hour before the crash.

Car Stalls on Road

The boys were beachbound when Hanger's car stalled near Upper Marlboro. The boys got another car to push them, and Rohme stood on the front of the car that was pushing to keep its bumper down. A jolt dislodged him and he fell to the pavement and broke his arm.

Rohme hitchhiked back to Washington while the others continued on. He was at Casualty Hospital receiving treatment when the ambulances brought in the other boys.

One of the boys, William Holly, 16, of 731 2d st. ne., was in critical condition with a fractured skull. Reported in "fair" condition were Hanger, with head and face lacerations; Peter Conto, 16, of 1823 Otis st. ne., with multiple cuts and bruises and George Briggs, 17, of

House Order for Prosecution Of 59 Witnesses Is Forecast

By the United Press

Chairman John S. Wood of the House Un-American Activities Committee predicted yesterday that the House will order contempt prosecution this week against 50 witnesses who ducked committee questions about subversive activities.

The Georgia Democrat said he expects "quick, favorable action" when the record number of citations comes before the House Thursday. If tried and convicted, the witnesses could be fined $1000 and sent to jail for one year.

They include Philip Bart, manager of the New York Communist Daily Worker, who refused to answer questions about a fake Russian passport ring, and Steve Nelson of Pittsburgh, who figured in the mysterious wartime "Scientist X" case.

Thirty-nine others refused to answer questions during the committee's on-the-spot investigation of Red activities in Hawaii, while the rest figured in various other inquiries in this country.

Members of Union

Most of the Hawaiians are members of Harry Bridges' Longshoremen and Dock Workers' Union, which recently staged a prolonged strike against West Coast shipping. Bridges himself was jailed over the weekend as a menace to national security.

The citations were recommended by the un-American activities group, which said its effort to lift the curtain on Communist activities in the United States has been handicapped for more than two years by refusal of witnesses to talk.

Wood, who expected the Korean crisis to spur the House into approving the citations, said most of those who refused to testify pleaded they were afraid of incriminating themselves.

As a result, he said, the "contempt move" is the only legal method now available to the committee to punish those who refuse to disclose information deemed by the committee to be vital to national security.

Action Ordered, He Says

He said the committee has evidence that the Communist Party in 1948 issued an order to all members and sympathizers "to stand on their constitutional rights" and refuse to answer congressional questions about party activities.

He said this was done to protect party members from possible perjury prosecution. Prior to that time, he added, it was the practice of witnesses hauled before the committee to deny affiliation with the party and its front groups.

The committee repeatedly has obtained contempt convictions against witnesses who refused point-blank to answer questions without giving any reasons. But this marks the first time it has pressed a case against anyone who took refuge in self-incrimination.

Nelson, now assigned as a Communist organizer in western Pennsylvania, refused to answer questions about the theft of atomic secrets from the radiation laboratory of the University of California at Berkeley during the early part of World War II.

The other witnesses include James J. Matles and several other officials and members of the left-wing United Electrical Workers Union, which recently was ousted from the CIO for hewing too close to the Communist Party line.

$60,000 in Jewels Stolen at French Villa of American

Nice, France, Aug. 6 (AP).—Thieves stole about $60,000 worth of jewels last night from the Riviera villa of an American businessman while his international society guests were playing bridge to the music of gypsy violins.

Hosts at the party were Norman Winston of New York, plastics manufacturer, and Mrs. Winston, owners of the Villa Le Roc.

The theft was discovered by Mrs. E. E. Gates, wife of a Conservative member of the British Parliament.

Mrs. Rodman de Heeren of New York City lost rings, brooches and earrings worth about $45,000, police said. Mrs. De Heeren is a member of the Wanamaker family.

Among other guests were Elsa Maxwell, noted party giver; the Duchess of Leicester; Lord Tavistock, and the Prince and Princess de Faucigny-Lucinge.

Korea Crisis Worst Threat, Lie Tells U. N.

Solving It Can Bring Best Peace Hopes Since 1945, He Says; Bold Action Needed

Lake Success, Aug. 6 (U.P.). United Nations Secretary General Trygve Lie said today that the Korean crisis is the worst since the war and that if the U. N. solves it the world will be closer to peace than at any time since 1945.

In his fifth annual report to the fall session of the General Assembly which convenes September 19, the U. N. chief strongly defended the U. N. action in rushing to the aid of the South Koreans when the Reds attacked across the Thirty-eighth Parallel.

There was only "one thing for the U.N. to do," he said, "to act quickly and decisively."

"If the UN is able to emerge intact and successful from the present crisis," he said, "its strength and influence will be immeasurably enhanced, and the world will be much closer to lasting peace than at any time since 1945."

Meets on Tuesday

The Security Council was in recess for the weekend, but will meet at 3 p. m. Tuesday to resume debate on whether to invite representatives of both North and South Korea to a meeting.

Russia has said that if North Koreans are not heard it will veto the appearance of South Koreans. Russia also has called for the withdrawal from Korea of all United States and other foreign troops.

In his report, Lie appealed for an extraordinary meeting of the 11-nation Security Council at which foreign ministers would replace regular delegates, the New York Herald Tribune noted, but said the prerequisite to this is —"restoration of peace in Korea."]

Lie said that when the U. N. succeeds in restoring peace in Korea, the need for big power negotiations to forestall new threats of a third World War will be greater than before.

Worse Than Berlin

He said the Korean crisis—"worse even than the deadlock in Berlin"—had interrupted his efforts to convoke a foreign ministers meeting to discuss his 20-year peace program.

Lie added that the East-West dispute over who is to represent China in the U. N.—the dispute that led to Russia's six-and-a-half month boycott—"would not have assumed such dangerous proportions had it not been for the overriding crisis in world affairs."

And he once again laid down his doctrine that the government habitually obeyed by the people and controlling the country should represent China.

Thus, while strongly defending the West on Korea, he continued to oppose its stand on China's U. N. membership. And he warned the West further about its attitude toward Asia and other under-developed areas with these words:

"Hundreds of millions of human beings are anxiously awaiting the dawn of a new life. Notwithstanding the complex and difficult character of the action that needs to be taken, any avoidable delay at this stage might easily exhaust the patience of millions—a patience which has long been heavily taxed."

Depends on Congress

Johnson Links Senate Action On Profits With Wage Curbs

By the United Press

Senator Edwin C. Johnson (D., Colo.) said yesterday the Senate probably would attach an excess profits tax to the Administration's war tax bill if Congress first authorized wage controls.

He is a member of the Senate Finance Committee which resumes work today on President Truman's five-billion-dollar "quickie" tax increase bill. The Senate Banking Committee already has agreed "in principle" to give the President standby power to impose price-wage-rationing controls.

Johnson agreed with some other committee members who favor delaying action on excess profits taxes. He added, however, that he would favor levying one now if Congress includes wage curbs in the Administration's economic controls program.

He indicated that he did not intend to press an excess profits levy in the committee, which expects to complete action this week on Mr. Truman's recommendations. They would boost personal income taxes 10 to 20 percent, effective October 1 and raise corporation taxes.

The increase in individual taxes would produce about three billion dollars a year and the higher corporation rates about $1,500,000,000. Another 500 million dollars would be raised by plugging tax "loopholes."

Since the Senate is scheduled to act first on a control bill, it will know what Congress intends to do about wage controls before voting on taxes. An excess profits tax amendment is sure to be offered on the floor regardless of the action taken on wage controls.

The Administration has not yet recommended an excess profits tax and the Senate committee probably will not approve one.

Still awaiting committee action are Administration proposals for higher personal and corporation income taxes, which account for about 90 percent of the money sought in Mr. Truman's program. The committee also still must act on some loophole plugging provisions.

IN TOKYO—Gen. Douglas MacArthur (left) extends a welcome to W. Averell Harriman, special adviser to President Truman, as he arrives in the Japanese capital yesterday for top-level discussions on the U. S. role in the Far East

Harriman, MacArthur Begin Talks

Clearing U. S. Policy In Far East Seen Envoy's Major Task

Tokyo, Aug. 6 (U.P.)—W. Averell Harriman, special adviser to President Truman, conferred today with Gen. Douglas MacArthur on the American position in the Far East.

A reliable source said MacArthur will emphasize that the United States must be prepared to meet the Communist challenge anywhere in Asia as it met it in Korea.

It was believed Harriman's task would be to see that United States moves against communism would not weaken the American political position in Asia.

(Washington sources said President Truman sent Harriman to confer about the political implications of MacArthur's recent trip to Formosa.

(Washington officials said Harriman would stress that the United States political attitude toward the regime of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek must be kept entirely separate from the purely military matter of defending Formosa.)

Wives in Japan Give Curtain Rods To Aid Air War

U. S. Air Base in Japan, Aug. 6 (U.P.).—American occupation housewives in Japan threw their curtain rods into the air war against North Korea today.

The curtain rods are playing an important part in the maintenance activities of an F-80 Shooting Star jet squadron making regular strikes against the North Koreans.

A critical shortage developed in the supply of pipes necessary to extend fuel lines to the large wing tip tanks that have been giving jets extra time over the target area, and the curtain rods went to war. The demand was met by stripping dependents' homes of the tubular Japanese-manufactured rods.

"It cuts down a little on our privacy," one Air Force wife said. "But this isn't a private war, either."

Naktong Gives First Strong Defense Line

Americans Prepared Positions on 140-Mile 'Continuous' Arc

By Russell Brines

Tokyo, Aug. 6 (AP).—For the first time in the Korean campaign, headquarters spokesmen speak of a "continuous" and "complete" defense line in describing present allied positions.

The line begins in the South, somewhere east of Chinju, and runs north and east to Yongdok along an arc estimated at 140 miles.

Much but not all of the line lies east of the Naktong River. This winding and sometimes deep river has been described as the best natural defense barrier the Americans have found since they entered the war.

No "Maginot Line"

But it is not a Maginot Line, even though the term "continuous" might give that impression. In rough and broken country like Korea a solid line, as distinct from a connected line, would be difficult to create even with adequate troops.

Military men say a good close front for an American division is about 7000 yards, or about four miles. When possible they try to tighten this down to 2000 or 3000 yards.

At best this would mean 31 defensive divisions, or over 300,000 men to cover the present 140-mile arc. It is being held by three American and five South Korean divisions identified as in action.

But the defenders have had time to select and prepare artillery, mortar and infantry positions. They have had time to demolish bridges across the Naktong and to take other measures to impede Communist progress.

Set for First Time

In other words, the defenders are set for the first time, having pulled back from 4 to 18 miles in what military men here described as a perfectly executed maneuver.

The Communists, however, can cross the Naktong at many points —as they already have done. On two separate occasions a Red battalion, numbering about 800 men, forded the river at shallow points

Leathernecks Start Their War

Marines Send 155-mm. Shell Into Red Lines to Open Action

With the U. S. Marines in Korea, Aug. 6 (AP).—A Marine artillery shot opened the Leathernecks' war against North Korean Communists today.

A battery commanded by Capt. Arnold Hofstetter of San Diego, Calif., fired the first Marine shot on Red positions along the southwestern front.

Sergt. Bethea McMullan of Oceanside, Calif., pulled the lanyard that sent the first round screaming from a 155-mm. gun.

"If it hit anywhere near where it should," remarked the 41-year-old McMullan, "it did a lot of good."

Hofstetter said he felt "good" about getting off the first Marine shot against the enemy.

"I wish we could have been here sooner," he said. He added, reflectively, "I wish it was the last shot fired instead of the first one."

Hofstetter, who didn't know his target, said the Marines' guns fired both phosphorus and high-explosive shells which could have been used on either Red personnel or positions.

The first gun to fire was set up in a schoolyard against a backdrop of green mountains. The weather-beaten schoolhouse with upswept roof corners was in a yard enclosed by a 7-foot rock wall.

Task Force Of 15,000 Hits to Ease Pusan Threat

Planes and Artillery Pound Reds Before Attack; Foe Loses Heavily Near Taegu

Tokyo (Monday), Aug. 7 (U.P.).—An estimated 15,000 United States Marines and soldiers launched the first big American attack of the war today at the southern end of the Allied front.

[Associated Press Correspondent Don Whitehead, with the attacking forces on the southern front, said the new offensive immediately ran into a Red counterattack. He said the enemy blow hit the American right flank soon after the troops

[The counter-blow kept the Marines and the Fifth Regimental combat team from moving out had jumped off in the dawn attack, on schedule, the Associated Press said. Reds during the night had cut most of the United States communications wires, and sources in Tokyo said this indicated definite intelligence of American attack plans and timing.

[At General MacArthur's headquarters, meanwhile, a briefing officer said the American action was no counterattack but a "planned offensive." — Editor's Note.]

Pushing off at 6:30 a. m., the American force slammed against three Communist divisions — perhaps 30,000 men. The big United States drive opened up west of Masan in a grim effort to break the back of the Red drive on the port of Pusan, only 40 miles away.

For the Marines it was their first action of the Korean war, and it came on the eighth anniversary of their division's assault on Guadalcanal, which opened the American counter-offensive in World War II.

If the Americans succeed they can ease the threat to Pusan, which is the heart of the supply

2400 Red Casualties Reported Along Naktong

Tokyo (Monday), Aug. 7 (AP). North Korean forces persisted Sunday in bloody small-scale thrusts across the Naktong River defense line, but successive crossings were largely repulsed with a high toll in Communist dead.

Red casualties approached 2400 dead and wounded, front line dispatches indicated.

U. S. Planes Hit Korean Reds in Support of Troops

Tokyo (Monday) Aug. 7 (AP).—American F-51 Mustangs and F-80 jets strafed and rocket-bombed Communist positions today in air support of the big United States ground attack in the southern tip of Korea.

In a surprise attack Sunday in Northern Korea, Mustangs destroyed nine Red planes. Two Mustangs were lost in the day's operations. One was shot down by enemy ground fire. Both pilots were missing.

Other Allied air raids Saturday and Sunday included carrier-based attacks on Red troop concentrations and supply lines in South Korea and assaults by Marine fighters and British Naval guns on targets in North Korea.

War Fears Sharply Cut Plane Travel to Europe

New York, Aug. 6 (AP).—Fear of was has caused European-bound air travel to drop sharply during the past 10 days, La Guardia Airport officials said today.

But inbound flights were arriving with capacity passenger loads. "You ought to hear them say how glad they are they're back in the United States," one airline spokesman said.

Hiroshima Marks Fifth Anniversary Of A-Bomb Blast

Hiroshima, Japan, Aug. 6 (AP).—Hiroshima, with special religious services, today marked the fifth anniversary of its atom bomb blasting.

The commemoration was not called a "peace festival," as in past years.

City authorities said they learned in advance that Japanese Communists were planning to link the peace festival idea with the Communists' Stockholm peace campaign. The officials decided to call today's ceremonies simply memorials.

Sirens sounded at 9:15 a. m., Japan daylight time, the hour the bomb exploded over the city five years ago. People bowed their heads in silent prayer.

Seepage at Fueling Dock

Gasoline-Oil Slick on Water Endangers Boats in Channel

(Picture on Page 3)

If a boatsman had tossed a lighted match into the Washington Channel at Maine ave. west of 12th st., sw., yesterday about 5:30 p.m., he might have become as famous as Mrs. O'Leary's cow.

And he might have darned well burnt himself to a crisp, too.

Seepage of gasoline and diesel oil from underwater pipes at the Mayflower Marine Service dock, 1300 Maine ave. sw., created a hazardous slick on the water.

To see if it was dangerous, Charles Botts, Mayflower superintendent, scooped up several cans of the fuel-slicked water and from a safe distance, tossed a match at them. They bugned, all right.

The fire boat William T. Belt and Engine Co. 13 turned their hoses on the slick and attempted to wash it into the middle of the channel so it could be carried downstream.

While they stood by, maintenance men were called from an oil supply company to repair the leaky pipes.

The seepage apparently occurred in pipes leading from underground storage tanks to the end of the pier.

100 Face Draft Tests In Board Step-up

About 100 District men have been ordered to report for pre-induction examinations this morning as local Selective Service boards step up their rate of processing under higher Army quotas for September and October.

For the past two weeks, prospective draftees have been called for their exams at the rate of about 50 every Monday, Wednesday and Friday.

Beginning today, the rate will be doubled because the Army asked for 252 District men to be inducted during September, instead of the original quota of 101. The October number was set at 248.

The staff of doctors, clerks and enlisted men has been increased at the main Army-Air Force recruiting station at Arlington Farms, where the men receive physical and mental tests.

Meanwhile, recruiters for the armed services had a fair weekend. The Army-Air Force station received 26 applications during Saturday and Sunday, enlisted six in the Army and one in the Air Force, and accepted 17 tentatively for later processing.

The Navy accepted four male recruits and one Wave, subject to later checks, out of nine volunteering. The Marines accepted three from 23 applicants.

Draft Delinquents Are Warned by FBI

New York, Aug. 6 (AP).—The Federal Bureau of Investigation tonight warned draft delinquents to comply with the Selective Service Act or face possible prison terms.

The warning came as draft figures showed that about 24 percent of the draftees called up in the New York City area failed to appear for physical examinations.

The warning came from Edward Scheidt, special agent in charge of the FBI New York office. He said willful violators may be subjected to five years imprisonment and a $10,000 fine. But he said those who had made "an honest mistake" should confer with their local draft boards.

Apple Blossoms In Mid-Summer

MISS ANN BUTLER, appropriately of Winchester, Va., strikes a pretty pose with apple blossoms that bloomed just in time for the convention here of the International Apple Association, which opened yesterday at the Statler. The trick was done by putting dwarf trees in cold storage just before they were about to bloom, and taking them out last week. Miss Butler's apple also came out of the cold storage vaults

6 New Cases Of Polio Listed In Wythe

Wytheville, Va., Aug. 6 (U.P.).—Six new cases of infantile paralysis were reported today in Wythe County, center of the Nation's worst epidemic.

The new cases, one of which occurred in Wytheville itself, brought the total number of cases reported in Wythe County to 127 since July 3. Fourteen patients have died.

The new cases raised the total number of cases in Virginia to 290. Twenty-two have died throughout the State.

The new patients were removed to the Crippled Children's Hospital at Roanoke, Va., which at the same time was receiving eight cases from elsewhere in the State.

Wytheville, a town of 5300 residents, centered in the mountainous region of southwest Virginia, has thus far contributed 63 of Wythe County's cases, or nearly half.

CIO Urges House To Defeat Proviso In Security Bill

The CIO called on the House yesterday to force the Senate to erase a provision of the new social security bill that the union said would "destroy" the present system of unemployment insurance.

In a strong letter to every House member, CIO Legislative Director Nathan Cowan said the proviso, sponsored by Sen. William F. Knowland (R., Calif.), is an "incitement to industrial warfare."

The House is expected to act on it this week. President Truman has already called for elimination of the amendment.

The amendment would curtail Secretary of Labor Tobin's authority to withhold unemployment insurance funds from States failing to meet Federal standards.

Mundt to Move For Senate Action On Red Curb Bill

Senator Karl E. Mundt (R., S. D.) revealed yesterday he will try to force Senate action on his Communist-control bill this week by offering it as a rider to the emergency economic control legislation.

He said a "great many" Democratic and Republican Senators have assured him of support in the maneuver to bring the anti-Red legislation to a vote over the objections of Administration leaders.

The bill would require the Communist Party and its fronts to register with the Justice Departments. Reds would be denied passports to travel abroad and would be barred from Federal jobs.

19 Dead in Flood

Tokyo, Aug. 6 (AP).—Nineteen Japanese were killed, 58 are missing and 196 were injured in floods caused by a three-day rainstorm in eastern Japan, Japanese authorities reported today. The flood waters covered 128,000 acres.

Wherry Seeks 'Blunderer' in Korean Attack

Senate Republican Leader Kenneth S. Wherry (Nebr.) yesterday said some Government official "blundered" in not recognizing the danger of a Communist invasion in Korea. "And in due time we shall fix that responsibility," he warned.

He said Rear Admiral Roscoe H. Hillenkoetter, chief of the Central Intelligence Agency, has testified that CIA warned that the North Koreans were massing troops along the thirty-eighth parallel "a few days before the attack occurred."

"Someone blundered in not recognizing that an invasion was in the offing," Wherry said on a radio broadcast.

Wherry renewed his demand that President Truman fire Secretary of State Dean Acheson to help "unite the American people." He said Acheson's record on Western European problems "is no better than his ineptness on problems of the Pacific."

On the question of home front mobilization, Wherry said he will support "whatever measures experience teaches are necessary to prevent runaway inflation."

He said the President should be given authority to set up priorities for the manufacture of military goods, but he opposed granting hard-and-fast controls over prices and wages.

"Absolute power to govern prices and wages—these are segments of the 'Fair Deal' in conflict with the goals for which we are opposing communism in Korea and elsewhere around the globe," he said.

Wherry said the "greatest contribution" Mr. Truman and Congress could make to hold down prices would be to cut nonmilitary Government spending.

Asked about the roll of the Republican Party during the war emergency, Wherry said it should be one of constructive criticism of Administration "failures."

Slayer Baptized In Virginia Jail

Luray, Va., Aug. 6 (Spl.).—Merle Rothgeb, 42, Leaksville, Va., plasterer convicted of slaying another Page County man in June, yesterday was baptized into the Congregational-Christian Church at the Page County Jail.

The baptism ceremony was performed by the Rev. R. E. Newton of the Congregational-Christian Church of Leaksville, which is about 5 miles from Luray. He said Rothgeb had been "feeling blue" and asked for membership in the church.

Rothgeb was convicted in Page County Circuit Court on his birthday, August 1, of shooting Olen Dinges, a Washington stone mason, at a Stanley, Va., fair.

Members of 'the Michael Clan' Gather for Sunday Services

The Washington Post

FAMILY REUNION—Standing while the Rev. Dr. Walter M. Michael and his son, the Rev. Marion S. Michael, greet them are about 80 members of the Michael family

80 in Michael Family Hold Reunion Here; See Kin Baptized

It isn't often that a pastor has 80 relations attending his Sunday service, and 18 babies to baptize besides.

When one of the babies is the minister's own, and his grandfather baptizes him, that's news too.

Yesterday, the "sum total" happened to the Rev. Marion S. Michael, minister of Marvin Memorial Methodist Church, Four Corners, Silver Spring, Md.

In Family Reunion

It was the family reunion for the descendants of the late Marion S. Michael and Alice C. Michael, grandparents of the pastor. From the vicinity of Frederick, Md., where the first Michaels settled, from Baltimore and from Washington, the Michaels arrived, 80 strong. One-fifth of the church was filled with them.

Three of the original five children of the first Michaels were there—Mrs. O. B. Thomas of Adamstown, Md.; E. E. Michael of Daubs, Md., and the Rev. Dr. Walter M. Michael, father of the pastor.

Dr. Michael, now retired, was formerly pastor of Elbrook Methodist Church in Brightwood Park, Md., and of Center Street Methodist Church in Cumberland, Md.

Senior and junior Michaels, the only ministers of the relationship, cooperated in baptizing 18 babies, three of them in the Michael line.

Baptized By Grandfather

Marjorie Elizabeth, 6-weeks-old daughter of the pastor, was held by her father while Grandfather Michael christened her.

"There are some in this Michael clan," guest minister Dr. Michael said in his sermon, "who claim to be descendants of that Michael who came out of heaven."

"I don't know about that, but you're really some tribe.

Appropriately, the theme was "The Whole Family."

After the service, the clan invaded Rock Creek Park for a picnic and chicken dinner.

It was their first reunion in 27 years.

The grocers will begin their sympathy walkout Monday to back up a week-long national strike by clothing and shoe stores. These already have been joined by most other types of shops. Only pharmacies will be open Monday.

The National Labor Relations Board yesterday reported it completed 986 union bargaining election cases during June—a record for one month under the Taft-Hartley law.

During the period, the board said in its monthly statistical report, it conducted a total of 657 bargaining elections. AFL unions participated in 324 votes and won 202 of them; CIO unions were on the ballot in 193 and won 170; independent unions won 114 out of 212.

Red Korean Air Attack Feared

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

YANKS ATTACK—In their biggest drive of the Korean war, United States troops have attacked North Korean invaders on the southern front (1). Units of the Twenty-fourth Infantry continued to clean pockets (2) of Reds who crossed the Naktong River near Chirhyon. A large concentration of Communists was spotted west of Naktong (underlined), apparently a buildup for attack on defenders on the other side of the river (3)

Tokyo, Aug. 6 (U.P.)—The North Korean air force, driven from the skies in early days of the war, is returning in strength but so far has refused combat with American fliers, a headquarters spokesman said today.

Air Force officials were puzzled by refusal of the planes to rise to combat despite the havoc being wreaked by American and Australian fliers.

The spokesman at Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters said more and more planes have been sighted since August 4. Some were seen on the ground and destroyed. Some were seen taking off from the airfield at Seoul. But they did not attack.

The spokesman said nine were destroyed on the ground at Kimpo airfield near Seoul; nine probably destroyed and five more damaged. Light B-26 bombers bombed and strafed four other planes at Osan.

The spokesman said the North Koreans may be saving their planes for "some major effort" because "we are seeing more North Korean planes south of the thirty-eighth parallel these days than at any time since the early days of the war."

The latest attacks raised the Air Force claim for North Korean aircraft to 58 destroyed, 24 damaged and 17 probably destroyed. The spokesman would not estimate strength of the North Koreans at start of the war or now.

One United States F-51 Mustang was hit by North Korean ground fire Saturday and crashed behind the Red lines. A carrier based plane crashed into the sea but the pilot was saved.

The Air Force announced these developments in the air war:

1. Planes operating from a newly arrived 27-000-ton carrier of the Essex class—the second in action—swarming over the south and southwestern tip of Korea, inflicting heavy damage on enemy positions near the front. Carrier-based Marine fliers struck the Inchon-Seoul-Suwon triangle.

2. A second B-29 strike with 500 tons of high explosives put the Seoul marshalling yards out of commission. The attack was coordinated with Navy bombardment and air strikes against Inchon, the port for Seoul.

3. American and Australian planes ranged throughout the battle areas, plastering front line positions, bombing and strafing troop concentrations and transports and striking far behind enemy lines at communications, supplies and war plants.

arteries to all the American front.

A sustained American drive also would relieve pressure on the United States and South Korean Naktong River line to the north, where the North Koreans still had the initiatitve and had established a bridgehead on the American side of the river 28 miles southwest of Taegu, the temporary South Korean capital.

The American force was called Task Force Kean, led by Maj. Gen. William B. Kean, commander of the 25th Infantry Division. It consists of the reinforced Third Marine Brigade of the 1st Marine Division, and the 35th and 5th Regimental Combat Teams.

This lineup probably gives Kean a force of about division strength. A division normally consists of three regiments, and regimental combat teams generally are larger than a regiment, with about 5000 to 6000 men.

As the Americans sought to erase the immediate threat to Pusan in the south, North Korean forces penetrated the Allied beachhead in two dangerous thrusts today.

A North Korean breakthrough on the southern Naktong River line was described by an Eighth Army spokesman as "the primary threat at present." The spokesman said the enemy in this area was being contained by counter-attacking 24th Division troops about 28 miles southwest of Taegu.

The second serious threat came from the northeastern sector where an estimated two Communist regiments pushed deeply into the United Nations' territory across the rugged mountains about 15 miles inland from the east coast. The enemy was making slow progress through the mountains but had no opposition from Allied troops.

General Stresses Importance

In a conference with correspondents near the front, Kean said the attack was aimed at "limited objectives" but he emphasized that it was highly important to the Allies at this stage of the war.

United Press Correspondent Jack James reported that the United States troops swept into action with full air and naval support and with some of the best weapons ever turned out in America. When the Marines came to Korea they were reported to have flame throwers and other new weapons still classified as secret.

"Morale was high," James said.

"The units included troops who have met the enemy before and know how he fights. Other troops who have not yet come under fire have been well briefed by experienced officers."

The attack was the first full-scale offensive launched by the Americans since their first lone battalion was thrown into the battle against the relentless Communist army four and a half weeks ago.

"It marks the end of delay and withdrawal action by outnumbered Americans," James reported.

Planes Help Artillery

Before the Americans jumped off this morning artillery shells rained into the Communist lines and from the skies United States planes strafed the enemy and ripped them with rockets and bombs.

The Air Force apparently had the support of carrier-based planes which have been slashing at the Communist supply lines behind the front. Two mighty Essex-class carriers of Task Force 77 steamed close to Korea Sunday to launch more than 200 planes against the enemy.

To the north, the Communists still held the offensive. They pushed new spearheads across the Naktong River defense line in at least three places 15 to 20 miles southwest of Taegu, the provisional South Korean capital.

The North Koreans also reinforced a brideghead of more than 1000 troops which they had put across the Naktong earlier. American troops of the Twenty-fourth Division had this Communist force boxed in at a bend in the river and were trying to mop up the North Koreans before they could infiltrate the American lines in force.

Try to Bring Tanks Across

In the early stages of this fighting the Americans hurled the Communists back to three hills on the east side of the river.

During the night, however, the Communists managed to reinforce the bridgehead with more troops. A front dispatch said there were indications the enemy was attempting to bring tanks across the river to aid the Communist force which was boxed in on three sides.

"There is no doubt that more Communists crossed the river before dawn," an American staff officer told United Press Correspondent Robert Bennyhoff.

"There's no way we can stop all of them with forces we now have," he said. "It is all we can do to prevent them from infiltrating and gathering in large numbers behind our positions."

Three tanks were seen this morning on the enemy side of the Naktong near the bridgehead being attacked fiercely by the Americans. One of the tanks had moved out on to a bridge which had been demolished near the east bank.

By the time United States fighter planes reached the scene the enemy had camouflaged the tanks so the pilots could not spot them from the air.

Other reports said the enemy was massing troops on the west side of the river about five miles above the bulge battle.

Red Weapons Captured

Twenty-five to 30 North Koreans were taken prisoner in the Twenty-fourth counterattack and a "great many" weapons captured, Brig. Gen. Pearson Menoher, deputy commander of the Twenty-fourth Division, reported.

Other fronts were relatively quiet, including the northern area where South Korean troops in recent days had wiped out an estimated 1600 enemy troops by letting two enemy battalions cross the headwaters of the Naktong and then overwhelming them.

The North Korean Communists were completing a regrouping for an all out attempt at victory. Where they would make their supreme effort was still unknown. Communiques and front dispatches reported four possibilities.

300 European Students Burn Frontier Bars

Wiessembourg, France, Aug. 6 (AP).—A group of 300 college students of various nationalities attacked the frontier barriers on both sides of the French-German border here today in a demonstration for European federation.

In a precisely timed operation, two groups of about 150 student each converged on the border posts, broke the barriers from their sockets and ceremoniously burned them in a field near the customs station on the German side.

The students were armed with hatchets, metal saws, bundles of kindling, and cans of gasoline. As the flames from the barriers crackled, the green-and-white flag of the European movement was hoisted above the blaze. This is an organization for European unity.

Prof. Michel Mouskhely of the University of Strasbourg, one of the operation's chief planners, declared it was the first time in history that Europeans had marched to their frontiers not to fight but to abolish the barriers.

The demonstration was designed to impress delegates to the Council of Europe, which is meeting in Strasbourg, about 35 miles south of here.

Only three guards were on duty at the French side when the youths swarmed upon their station. No resistance was offered.

On the German side, Customs Chief Erwin Henniger was alone with one guard.

The youths carried their flags and banners reading, "We demand a European citizenship," and "We demand the creation of a European government and Parliament."

There was a shout as the two groups spied each other. Many ran forward to shake hands with those from the other side, smiling and laughing, and repeating greetings.

Students from the French side represented every western European nation except Norway and Sweden. Most of them had been attending a Federalist Youth Congress here this past week.

New Carrier Doubles Korea Jet Forces

Aboard U. S. Carrier with Task Force 77 off Korea, Aug. 6 (U.P.)—A mighty 27,000-ton carrier of the Essex class has joined the fleet off Korea, the Navy said today, doubling the Navy's jet-propelled Sunday punch.

Pilots on the ship—joining an Essex-class flattop already in operation—received their baptism of fire on Saturday.

This largest carrier task force yet in operation off Korea's west coast launched Panther jets for sweeps against Northern airfields while Corsairs and Skyraiders blasted roads, boats and frontline targets on the southwestern front.

Carrier-based U. S. Marines worked over the Suwon-Inchon-Seoul triangle farther north with rockets, bombs and cannon fire, demolishing a large tank and truck assembly plant, leaving a tanker in flames and an oil refinery and chemical plant blazing.

Other Marines flew cover for Navy Neptunes spotting naval gunfire for United Nations naval forces bombarding Inchon, a surface attack that left fires and smoke visible 50 miles at sea.

Planes from the new carrier hammered "workhorse" targets near the front lines in the Chinju area and target farther south and west.

Ensign Ralph Neiger, 22, Coronado, Calif., sent his Skyraider attack bomber into a dive at 9500 feet and laid a 1000-pound bomb on a bridge.

Another Corsair fighter squadron tracked power lines to a plant and plastered it with rockets. Commander John Tex O'Neil of the same squadron said his planes jumped a village of about 500 people when antiaircraft fire was spotted.

"The village started exploding all over hell, with yellow and green smoke pouring out," he said. "They must have had some chemicals there."

Ensign Glenn T. Farnworth of Biggs, Calif., fling with O'Neil's squadron, was forced down off the western coast but was rescued by an air-sea rescue team.

Heaviest damage was inflicted in the area behind North Koreans rushing forward from Chinju. The carrier planes knocked out bridges, set fire to camouflaged ammunition dumps, blasted a power plant and strafed an administration building.

F-80 Jets Prove No. 1 Weapon; They Take It and Hand It Out

By Charles Corddry

Tokyo, Aug. 6 (U.P.)—The Air Force's F-80 high-speed jet-propelled fighter plane has proved itself a top-drawer weapon under poor conditions and has lived down the bad name it got early in the Korean war.

The F-80 Shooting Star has proved in its first combat test as a ground-support weapon that it can inflict heavy damage on the enemy and that it can take heavy damage and keep flying.

It was criticized as too fast—unable to spot and identify targets properly—inadequately armed and not too useful because it could spend so little time over the target area.

But a handful of F-80s is given a large share of the credit for keeping the ground forces from being shoved out of Korea. The F-80s have flown about 70 percent of all sorties conducted by the Air Force and top Army men have given the Air Force much credit for helping save the situation.

For three weeks I have covered jet operations from a fighter base in Japan and I have marveled at the amount of battle damage they have suffered and kept flying. One returned with 42 inches of its rudder and vertical stabilizer cut off, another with an aileron gone.

Finally, I saw a bullet hole in the engine compressor, the plane's most vulnerable spot, but the pilot flew that way for 45 minutes and got home.

It's easy to accept the vehemently expressed advice of Lieut. Col. Jack D. Doyle of Washington, D. C., and Cleveland, O., commander of the Thirty-fifth Fighter Group.

"Don't you let anybody sell that airplane short," he said. "It can take it."

Doyle said propeller-driven Mustangs were pressed into service simply because there weren't enough jets. But if the North Koreans begin using Russian jets, then only the F-80 can compete with them, he said.

"If they do," said Col. Stanton T. Smith, jr., 34-year-old commander of the Forty-ninth Fighter Group, "we can whip what they've got with our jets."

Smith, a native of San Antonio, Tex., and a veteran of 235 missions in China, Burma and India, said one of the planes he flew there was an F-47 Thunderbolt.

"But give me jets," he said. "We have an airplane that's doubled our performance. Why back up?"

Air Force men pointed out that most earlier problems facing the jets—and leading to demands for "old-fashioned" F-51s and F-47s—have been licked.

The problem of finding targets was solved by putting tactical air control teams on the ground in jeeps at the front lines and in the air in liaison planes.

The problem of armament was solved by slinging two 500-pound bombs and eight rockets under the wings. The problem of short range was eased by adding larger wing-tanks.

Criticism of the fact the jets expend their ammunition faster than Mustangs—at a ratio of 12 to 7—was met with the explanation that the jets' doubled speed means they can put more lead in a target area in less time and more accurately.

Canadians Find Big Meteorite Crater

Toronto, Aug. 6 (AP).—The Globe and Mail said tonight that a crater formed by a meteorite, far larger than any other such crater yet found, has been discovered far north in the Province of Quebec, near Hudson Strait.

El Diablo, southwest of Winslow, Ariz., has been considered the largest such crater. It is about 4000 feet in diameter.

Ken W. MacTaggart, reporter who accompanied an expedition to northern Quebec, said the newly discovered crater is four or five times bigger than the one in Arizona.

Izvestia Declares U. S. Aggressor

Moscow, Aug. 6 (AP).—A three-column Izvestia editorial today said the United States was intervening in a civil war in Korea and therefore was an aggressor under international law.

The Soviet government newspaper declared: "There is no force in the world which can depict the struggle for liberation of the Korean people, fighting for their national unity, as aggression. Such are the facts. They indisputably constitute that from the point of view of international law the military actions of the United States Government toward the Korean people are armed aggression."

Indonesian Guerillas Battle Former Colonial Soldiers

Jakarta, Aug. 6 (U.P.)—Indonesian navy units shelled and strafed former members of the Dutch colonial army at Macassar today after heavy fighting broke out between the colonial troops and guerilla forces in the town.

A high official source said the situation in Macassar, capital of the Indonesian Island of Celebes, was "serious." It was understood there were heavy casualties on both sides.

There was little precise information on the extent of the fighting, as communication with Macassar, more than 600 miles northeast of here across the Java Sea, were cut except for a few military lines. Radio Macassar was off the air.

Reports on how the fighting started were conflicting.

An Indonesian military source said the former colonial troops left the camp where they presently are awaiting dispersal following the breakup of the Dutch colonial army July 26, and attacked guerillas in the town.

The official Indonesian news agency Aneta said guerillas first attacked the Dutch camp and that the colonial soldiers then decided to mop up the town.

156 U. S. Writers Cover War Out of 271 Total

Tokyo, Monday, Aug. 7 (U.P.).—The United States has 156 correspondents accredited for the Korean war of a total of 271 from 19 countries, Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters announced today.

Britain is second with 28 accredited correspondents. Australia has 15; China, 14; France, 13; and Canada 5, among others.

Everything at Steak!

By Albert Parchey Mesirow

"IT MUST BE the heat," remarked one of my friends. "People do the strangest things in hot weather," he continued. "Here you are, using up valuable space and time to embark on a crusade for bigger tips for cab drivers. Maybe you ought to get away to a cool clime for a couple of weeks!" As a matter of fact, I am probably as little affected by the heat as anyone in Washington. Parchey's is perfectly air-conditioned, and my screened porch at home is constantly cooled by a pleasant breeze. My preoccupation with the plight of our local cab drivers is simply a matter of concern for fellow citizens who, through no fault of their own, are behind the current economic 8-ball. They have a lot at steak. In the face of rising prices, they have failed to obtain a commensurate increase in fares. Today, their tariff no more than covers a 100% jump in the price of cabs and a 50% increase in gas, oil and service. The tip that was once a "dividend" has now become the only source of the cabby's "take home" pay. Out of it, he must settle his rent, buy food for his family, and meet all other living expenses. My position is that when people know this, they will willingly join me in becoming habitual twenty-cent-minimum tippers. If, as my friend suggests, simple little "crusades" like this are the result of high temperatures, maybe ours would be a better world if we had summer all year 'round!

Speaking of heat (and who isn't!) it's surprising how many people think that the proper summer diet consists solely of the tea-room type of tid-bit commonly known as "nibbling food." Nothing could be farther from the truth, according to dietary authorities. What people need to withstand the debilitating effects of heat and humidity is plenty of nourishing protein. So, when you decide to escape the mugginess of our August climate and the stuffiness of your own kitchen, and come to Parchey's for a thick, juicy filet mignon, you are doing your tired body more of a favor than you might think. In the tender succulence of this perfectly aged, perfectly prepared beef; in its rich and flavorful ruby juice; in its delicately-seasoned mushroom - and - wine sauce are the vital elements you need to build up your resistance to weather. Make a regular habit of enjoying a tender, expertly broiled steak here several times a week, and you'll find that you're less tired at the end of the day, you again greet morning with your cheery, spring-time smile, and you have considerably less difficulty getting through your daily chores. You'll sleep better, too, regardless of the temperature. It's a therapy worth trying . . . and perfectly delicious too! Come in and see. Our address: 19th at K St., N.W.

We have been honored by the visits of a number of new guests recently. Among these have been: The Misses Diane, Phyllis and Sylvia Shulman, Dr. and Mrs. George Nordlinger (the good doctor had to rush off to usher a new responsibility into the world), Mr. Fred R. Earnshaw, Mr. and Mrs. Robin C. Meadows, Lt. Col. and Mrs. O. R. Koch, Sr., U.S.A., and Mr. S. Pear. Thank you and come again. Old friends who have recently again enjoyed our fare include: the eminent Don, Professor H. W. Price, of the University of Maryland; Mr. C. G. Dunlap; Miss Frances Marotti; Commander F. P. Brown, U. S. N. R.; Mr. Walter Chewning; Hon. P. N. Wright of England; Mrs. Sonia V. Garner and Miss Jean Page.

The German, who delights in beer, is quite a war-like cuss; the frigid Englishman drinks ale, and spurns such common fuss; the agile Frenchman loves his wine (and loves his ladies, too!), while Norsemen call for Aquavit and nothing else will do! The Japanese like saki and they drink it by the ton, but Moslems do not drink at all (and do not have much fun!). The Russians, guzzling vodka raw, notoriously are meanies, but guileless and good-natured us . . . well, we like dry Martinis! There is no moral in this rhyme (it isn't even verse) except to point the fact to all, for better or for worse, that all throughout this land of ours, from rocky coast to coast, the dry Martini is the drink Americans like most. The best of dry Martinis are those served you by Parchey, so rush to K and 19th Sts. and sample one today! If you don't like my rhyming, friends, just blame it on the heat, and don't let it deter you from coming here to eat!

Gen. Travis, Victim of Crash, Was Distinguished AF Officer

Fairfield-Suisun Air Base, Calif., Aug. 6 (AP).—Brig. Gen. Robert F. Travis, 45, killed in the B-29 crash and explosion here, was one of the most distinguished officers of the Air Force.

He had been commander of Fairfield-Suisun since June, 1949, when he took over as commanding general of the Ninth Strategic Reconnaissance Wing, later the Ninth Heavy Bomber Wing.

He had many decorations for valor and active combat missions in World War II.

A native of Savannah, Ga., he was graduated in the West Point class of 1928 as second lieutenant in the Field Artillery. A year later he transferred to the Air Corps.

His climb was swift. As World War II began Travis was commanding officer of a bombardment group. In 1943, as brigadier general, he took the Forty-first Combat Wing of the Eighth Air Force to England.

General Travis personally led his wing on 35 missions over Europe. He won the Distinguished Service Cross, the Silver Star with two clusters, the Distinguished Flying Cross with three clusters, the Air Medal with three, the Purple Heart, the French Legion of Honor and Croix de Guerre with palm, and a decoration from Britain.

In September, 1944, Travis returned to the United States to command training units. Three years later he was made chief of staff of the Seventh Air Force, Hickam Field, Hawaii. Later he became commanding general of the Seventh. In 1948 he was head of the Pacific Air Command. His next post was that of commanding general at Fairfield-Suisun.

The general is survived by his wife, Mrs Frances Travis, and four children, Jayne, 19; Robert 15; John, 12, and Roger, 3, all living at the base.

17 Die, 60 Hurt in B-29 Crash

were rolled like cans and shattered.

Capt. John Thornton, 33, of Billings, Mont., said, "I was 75 to 100 yards from the plane. I was enveloped in fire, thrown back 20 or 30 feet and landed on my arm. That's all I remember." His hands and arms were burned badly.

Fire equipment, ambulances, hearses, medical supplies, doctors and nurses swarmed in from nearby communities.

The base hospital said it had about 60 persons under treatment. Apparently there was no injury to children. But two women underwent amputation of shattered right feet.

Col. Carlos J. Cochrane, who became acting commander of the base upon the death of General Travis, said the pilot and co-pilot of the bomber escaped without serious injury, three others aboard escaped without major hurts. But three men are under treatment for serious injuries.

The fire and explosion generated a critical traffic problem as women and children, thrown into panic, swarmed the roads while emergency vehicles rushed to the scene.

Two surgical teams and equipment sped from the Army's Letterman General Hospital in San Francisco to tend the injured. In all, about 24 doctors raced to the base from nearby points to aid the 12-man Fairfield-Suisun staff.

Spectators Knocked Flat

Sergt. R. H. Lewis of Clay, Ky., said the explosion knocked spectators flat to the ground, including himself. He was taking pictures in front of his trailer when the bombs exploded.

Sergeant Lewis said, "I was about 100 yards from the low circling plane. Suddenly it straightened out, leveled and smashed its left wing into the ground.

"One man came out of the plane and walked around in a dazed condition. I helped him get away from the fire."

Lewis said he could hear men shout, "Let's get out of here. There are bombs on here."

From Col. Cochrane on down, airmen firmly defended the pilot's judgment in trying to return to the field after trouble developed.

One flier said "he had flying speed or he would not have been off the ground, and he was getting power from the two bad engines. So the natural thing was for him to try to get back to the field. And he almost made it."

The pilot had maneuvered the big bomber in a half-circle from the takeoff line and was within less than 30 seconds of reaching the strip when he crashed.

Maj. George Andrews, information officer at the air base, said the Superfortress was starting on a long training mission when the accident occurred. It was not en route to the Korean war zone, he said.

Marine Group Elects Three District Men

Three local men were among the new officers elected yesterday by the First Marine Division Association as it ended its three-day reunion at the Statler Hotel.

Elected president was Brig. Gen. John T. Selen, now stationed at Camp Lejeune, N. C. Maj. John F. Fitzgerald of Boston was named first vice president, and Herbert McCallen of New York City, second vice president.

Sergt. Victor E. Trautman of 89 Hawaii ave. ne., stationed at Marine Corps Headquarters here, was elected third vice president and Navy Capt. Everett B. Keck of Wardman Park Hotel, fourth vice president.

The famed First Division had Navy personnel assigned to it when the unit fought at Guaralcanal and other points in the Pacific during World War II.

Picked as secretary yesterday was Warren S. Silvertsen of Crestwood, N. Y. Maj. Nathaniel Morgenthal of 3302 Martha Custis dr., Alexandria, was elected treasurer.

Earlier yesterday, about 300 members of the "First" gathered at the ampitheater of Arlington Cemetery for brief ceremonies dedicated to the war dead in all national cemeteries.

Gen. A. A. Vandegrift, the unit's old wartime commander and now honorary association president, spoke briefly. He urged those present to help prevent a recurrence of today's dangerous world conditions.

Three chaplains—one Protestant, one Catholic and one Jewish—participated in the ceremony. All served with the division in the last war. The United States Marine Band played and a volley was fired by a squad from the Marine Barracks here.

Reds Reported Getting Soviet Tommy Guns

Tokyo, Aug. 6 (U.P.)—Russia has supplied the North Koreans with an enormous quantity of submachine guns, a spokesman for Gen. Douglas MacArthur reported today.

Each division in the North Korean army now has about 3200 of the tommy guns, the spokesman said. They are of 7.26-millimeter caliber.

The gun is effective at 80 yards, the spokesman said. It has a rifle stock, but is usually fired from the hip. It can hold 72 rounds of standard Russian pistol ammunition. It may be used as either an automatic or semiautomatic weapon—that is, it may be fired in long, rapid bursts or in single shots.

The spokesman said this gun is suited to troops who have not been trained in the use of rifles, which require expert aiming.

Naktong Gives Strong Line

in the area southeast of Hamchang, the abandoned road and rail center 50 miles north of Taegu.

Official communiques say South Korean troops permitted these two crossings and, in each case, annihilated the advancing Reds as they reached republican defenses. The defenses are south instead of on the river.

Another Communist battalion paddled across the river during darkness near Chirhyon, about 18 miles northwest of Masen which commands the approaches to Pusan. This group was cut off and attacked by elements of the U. S. 24th Division.

The Naktong itself changes character throughout its long course. In the north it is fordable and in the west it can be crossed easily in small boats. At other points it runs deeply between cliffs, or in the far south, flattens lazily into a muddy delta.

The river alone will not hold back the Communists. Its usefulness is in slowing down the advance and making thousands of Communist infantry openly vulnerable to raking artillery and aerial attack—as if they were on a parade ground. Once a column is caught crossing a river there is no place to hide.

Knowing this, the Reds use the cover of darkness wherever possible for their crossings.

The big question will be whether the Reds can butt their way across the river barrier at heavily defended points where main roads are available. With bridges blown out, the problem of getting needed tanks, artillery and supplies across the water becomes increasingly difficult.

Harriman, MacArthur Begin Asia Talks

HARRIMAN—Frm. Pg. 1

MacArthur's thinking in the past told the United Press that dispatches from the United States which said MacArthur's Formosa visit had damaged American political aims in Asia were "obviously inspired by diehards who would not give up their political views on Asia which events have proved erroneous."

One source said that if President Truman were dissatisfied with MacArthur he would tell the general directly and not permit "leaks" to the press to smear the United Nations commander at this time.

Harriman arrived here yesterday and conferred for three hours with MacArthur before they went to lunch together. He was a guest at the United States Embassy and it was believed he talked informally with the general there Sunday night after MacArthur returned from his headquarters.

The Chinese Communists seized upon MacArthur's recent flying trip to Formosa as an excuse to loudly trumpet their claims of American "imperialistic intentions" in the Far East.

In view of this, it was believed Harriman would confer with the general on ways of extending military aid to Communist-threatened nations while making it crystal clear that the United States had no motives other than halting Communist aggression.

MacArthur met Harriman at the airport and the two drove to the American embassy for lunch. Harriman will be guest there during his Tokyo visit.

Informed sources said MacArthur would plump for greater aid to the Formosa government plus greater backing to the British in Hongkong—now almost face to face with the Red armies—and to the French in Indo-China.

These sources said MacArthur would demand no halfway measures in meeting the Communist threat and that he would demand these views be transmitted to the governments of Asia as a hard and fast rule of American policy.

As an example of this policy, MacArthur during his visit to Formosa arranged to set up a liasion staff and proper communications channels between his headquarters and the Nationalist government.

There were indications MacArthur might ask for elaboration of such measures to take in other Communist-threatened countries.

It was recalled that MacArthur as early as last year was said to feel the defense of Formosa vital to American security in the Far East and to have urged American military help.

Former Danzigers Seek Free City Status Return

Hamburg, Germany, Aug. 6 (U.P.). Sixteen thousand former inhabitants of the once free city of Danzig told the United Nations today that the city must again become free.

The former inhabitants closed a two-day meeting by adopting a resolution to the U. N. declaring the free city statute was still in effect and that the exiled inhabitants hoped to return.

Danzig, now known as Gdansk, was incorporated into Poland after the war.

Royalist Rally Renews Clash Over Leopold

Brussels, Belgium, Aug. 6 (U.P.). Supporters of King Leopold III clashed with police and anti-Leopoldists here today when royalists tried to march on the center of Brussels after a demonstration before the king's palace in suburban Laeken.

At least three persons were injured and four arrested in street skirmishes with club-swinging police.

Two thousand royalists from pro-Leopold Flanders gathered on the palace grounds to chant "Vive Leopold" and protest last Tuesday's agreement under which Leopold pledged to step down from the throne in response to Socialist demands.

The demonstration was unauthorized, since royalist leaders, at Leopold's request, had called off a threatened march on the capital in fear of bloodshed.

After a quiet rally on the palace grounds, some 600 royalists started to march down the Boulevard Danvers— a quarter mile from the heart of the city.

Police headed them off and cries of "Leopold to the gallows" mingled with royalist shouts of "Down with Spaak" (Socialist leader Paul-Henri Spaak).

One anti-Leopoldist took a swing at a demonstrator. The melee spread and police moved in, beating at least three persons to the pavement with their clubs.

Police blocked off the boulevard and restored order in a quarter of an hour.

Most of the royalist demonstrators came from the strongly pro-Leopold city of Antwerp.

Scattered acts of sabotage and terrorism continued throughout Belgium as political leaders rushed plans for the transfer of the royal powers from Leopold to his 19-year-old son, Crown Prince Baudouin.

In Ghent, anti-Leopoldists stoned the house of M. de Schryver, former president of the Social Christian (Catholic) Party. A homemade bomb was found in the house of another Leopold supporter. At Oostmalle, in Flanders, telephone lines were cut during the night.

Political observers said they believed both Houses of Parliament would pass the law authorizing Leopold to delegate his powers to his son this week. They said Parliament probably would hear Baudouin take the oath at a joint session Friday.

U. S. Is Urged To Resist All Red Advances

New York, Aug. 6 (U.P.).—Freedom House urged today that the United States be prepared to challenge Russian aggression against any sovereign state, including Communist Yugoslavia.

The proposal was contained in a sweeping six-point program by the board of directors of Freedom House, an organization dedicated to furthering the "One World" goal of the late Wendell Willkie. Former War Secretary Robert P. Patterson, president of Freedom House, submitted this program to President Truman and urged that it be adopted to meet the Communist "threat to our civilization":

1. Establishment of United Nations jurisdiction over a unified North and South Korea after the Korean war is won.
2. Preparation to challenge Russian aggression against any nation, regardless of the "political character of those nations attacked."
3. Elimination of the UN veto.
4. Apportionment of 20 to 25 percent of all United States productive capacity to rearming this country and her Western allies.
5. Full controls over prices, wages and profits "for the duration of the international crisis."
6. Outlawing of the Communist Party and its affiliated agencies and publications.

Freedom House praised United States action in Korea and said that the "Communist lust for power" had turned the world from a condition that was short of peace "into a state which is now only short of total war."

Buying Panic Is Reported In Hungary, War Fear Noted

Berlin, Aug. 6 (NYHT).—Housewives and members of their families are being sentenced to up to four years in prison with confiscation of all personal property for participating in a buying panic in Hungary, according to official Communist reports received today from Budapest.

"Szabad Nep," the official newspaper of the Hungarian Communist Party, cited numerous convictions.

Private shopkeepers and farmers are also being sentenced to prison on charges of hoarding foodstuffs and disseminating "horror rumors."

The current buying panic in Hungary is evidently due to widespread fear of a world war.

Those suspected of hoping the Americans will come to liberate them may be the first ones being arrested and jailed as an example for the rest of the public.

"Szabad Nep" disclosed the extent of the war scare and panic buying by reporting that many members of the Communist Party were among the offenders.

4 Hurt in Chase Of Stolen Car; 3 Boys Held

Maryland State Police yesterday hunted the driver of a stolen car who escaped after an early-morning, 100-mile-an-hour chase on the Baltimore boulevard in which another car was sideswiped, slightly injuring four persons.

The driver fled on foot in a field near Beltsville, Md. Three District boys who were passengers in the speeding auto were held at Waterloo on an open charge.

The State police aided in the chase from Laurel, College Park and Hyattsville.

The pursuit began when Maryland patrolmen from the Waterloo barracks and Laurel cruiser men saw an auto speeding south through Laurel and took after it, radioing ahead to College Park and Hyattsville.

The speeding car, which had New Jersey tags and had been reported stolen Saturday night from 44th and Clay sts. ne., sideswiped a northbound auto at a curve and ran off into a field.

As a man and two boys jumped from the car and ran, officers from College Park and Hyattsville joined the other police and caught the two boys. The third was found knocked out in the car.

Passengers in the sideswiped car, who were treated for cuts and bruises at the Leland Memorial Hospital in Riverdale, were Virginia Wolfe, 34, of 3237 Hiatt pl. nw.; John Thompson, 32, Annie E. Hawkins, 33, and Jesse T. Higgins, 46, all of Rockville.

Police reported the boys told them the driver of the car, whom they knew only as "Joe," picked them up at 50th st. and Deane ave. ne., and took them to Baltimore. They were on their way back to Washington, they said.

Veteran Killed and 8 Injured in 2-Car Highway Crash

1018 4th st. ne., with ruptured muscles in his right leg.

Harrison, the other driver, was reported in "very serious" condition at Freedmen's Hospital with compound fractures of both legs. His wife, Mrs. Mabel Harrison, 31, and their daughter, Helen, 14, were treated for lacerations.

Another passenger, Alexander Harrison, 41, suffered multiple lacerations. Three other occupants, identified by police as Corp. Samuel Stark, Fannie Stark and Juanita Stark, were not hurt.

Critically injured in another accident at 10 a. m. at Naylor rd. and Southern ave. se. was George W. Cofer, 31, of 5305 E st. se. He is in Casualty Hospital with a fractured skull, fractured lower left arm and severe face lacerations.

Police said Scout Car 112 of the Eleventh Precinct was chasing the convertible driven by Cofer south on Naylor rd. to arrest him for speeding.

Suddenly, as it approached Southern ave., the convertible swerved, struck the curb, turned over four or five times and landed on its top about 280 feet from where it hit the curb.

Police said Ellsworth Williams, 29, of 5319 E st. se., who was riding with Cofer, almost miraculously escaped serious injury. He was treated at Casualty Hospital for a broken finger on his right hand and contusions about the head, then released.

Malcolm R. Arnold, 24, of 401 Prince st., Alexandria, Va., was one of three persons killed early yesterday in the head-on collision of two automobiles near Potomac, Ill.

According to neighbors, Arnold's wife and three children were in Alexandria at the time of his death. They said he was in Illinois receiving treatment for wounds received in World War II.

Victims In Same Crash

Killed in the same crash were Mrs. E. W. McCracken, sr., of Cedar Rapids, Iowa, and Mrs. Forest R. Fie of Rantoul, Ill.

The wife of an Arlington minister, one of eight persons injured in a two-car accident Saturday on the Pulaski hwy. near Baltimore, was reported in "fair" condition yesterday at Baltimore City Hospital.

She is Mrs. Louise McLean of 1134 S. Thomas st., Arlington. She suffered fractured ribs and a chest injury.

The others were released after treatment. They were the Rev. William McLean, his daughter, Patricia McLean, 16, Jean Davis, 13, of Arlington, and Jean Frazier of Falls Church, all passengers in the McLean car, and Mrs. Margaret Abney, 42; Simpear Abney, 29, and Cleveland Abney, 29, all of Philadelphia.

2000 German Fliers Revive Glider Group

Nulda, Germany, Aug. 6 (U.P.).—Some 2000 German aviators gathered here today in the first revival of the annual gliding assembly permitted by the Allies since the war and vowed they will fly again.

The meeting was called by a newly formed German Aero Club to recall past "glories" and demand an end to the ban on German aviation.

Wolf Hirth, president of the club, told the gathering that included many Luftwaffe veterans that "we can best honor our dead comrades by flying again."

Pfc. Jack Zirkle, 19, Reported Killed in Action in Korea

Hagerstown, Md., Aug. 6 (AP).—Mrs. Elsie Zirkle said she was notified by telegram today that her son, Pfc. Jack A. Zirkle, 19, had been killed in action in Korea.

He was the first Washington County soldier to die in the Korean conflict.

Mrs. Zirkle said she was informed that her son was killed July 27. He was serving with the First Cavalry Division.

Colonial Beach Has Quiet Day

Colonial Beach, Va., Aug. 6 (Spl.).—This resort town, now at the height of its season, was quiet today as Negroes agreed not to repeat Saturday's visit to the half-mile public beach.

Mayor Norman F. Brewington said Martin A. Martin, Richmond attorney, and W. Lester Banks, executive secretary, Virginia branch, National Association for the Advancement of Colored Peeople, met with him this morning and promised there would be no attempt to use the beach today.

He said the promise was made in response to his plea that any swimming on the beach by the Negroes would lead to further violence.

The mayor said Martin indicated further visits may be scheduled, however.

The meeting between the mayor and the Negro leaders followed a Town Council session at which officials discussed Saturday's melee. Mayor Brewington said the town's normal population of 1500 was expanded to about 8000 by vacationers and their safety should be considered.

He reported that 16 to 18 State police were on hand Saturday, but this number was reduced to four after the Negro spokesman said there would be no swimming today.

Meanwhile, Eugene Johnson, 26-year-old Colonial Beach Negro, who was charged with "cutting, maiming and disfiguring" Alvin Tate, 17-year-old white boy from nearby Rollins Fork, was transferred to the Westmoreland County jail at Montross "for his own safety," the mayor said.

Johnson was released late Saturday on $500 bail recommended by Commonwealth's Attorney F. F. Chandler for a hearing August 15 before Trial Justice George Walker in Montross.

Tate was cut in the side and an artery severed, Mayor Brewington reported. He said he was treated Saturday by Dr. Fred Collier and released in "good condition."

Three news cameras lost in Saturday's melee have not been recovered, the mayor said.

Half-Billion Request For Marines Slated

NYHT News Service

Large new military appropriations, including 500 million dollars to boost Marine Corps strength to 174,000 men, will be sought in January by President Truman, according to Representative Carl Vinson (D., Ga.).

Representative Vinson, chairman of the House Armed Services Committee, yesterday said that in addition to Marine Corps funds, the President probably will want heavy outlays for a number of projects, including construction of news and rehabilitation of wartime military airports, barracks and bases.

The new requests, he said, will be over and above the $26,700,000,000 the President to date has asked for military purposes. In the last 18 days, the White House has boosted by $12,043,000,000 the estimates for defense requirements for the year ending next June 30.

On July 24, the President asked for an emergency increase over the $14,679,000,000 pre-Korean budget of $10,487,000,000 and last Friday he requested an additional $1,556,000,000.

Would Double Size

Plans for the Marine Corps, one of the early victims of the Defense Department's "economy drive" last winter, would more than double the size of the corps as last reported on June 30. At that time the recruiting figures gave the Marines a strength of 74,200 men, with an air arm of 16 squadrons.

Vinson said that of the half-billion dollar boost in corps funds, 100 million dollars probably would go to purchase planes for two additional air squadrons. The corps contends that its own specially trained air arm is necessary to provide support required by Marine ground troops.

Vinson announced that the President would request additional and substantial funds in January on the eve of an investigation by his group in defense shortcomings. The committee will hear Gen. J. Lawton Collins, Army Chief of Staff, today.

Among other matters interesting Vinson is what progress military officials have made in establishing a radar aircraft warning screen around the United States. He has suggested previously that only a few stations have been built with money appropriated in the past by Congress.

Tydings in Broadcast

In a radio broadcast on the war situation, Senator Millard E. Tydings (D., Md.), chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, asserted that if the Russians attack now, "in my judgment they certainly would have the best of it on the ground for some time."

He added, however, that the free nations "ought to have a great predominance" in the air because of the large United States stockpile of atomic bombs. Senator Tydings also is a member of the Joint Committee on Atomic Energy.

CEA Investigates Influence Of Speculation on Price Rise

An investigation to determine whether unlawful speculation has forced sharp rises in farm commodity prices is being pressed by the Commodity Exchange Authority.

J. M. Mehl, the CEA chief, disclosed last night that the inquiry is being made as a follow-up on a preliminary report to Secretary of Agriculture Brannan concerning widespread speculative activity since the Korean war began.

Commenting on that report last week, Brannan blasted profit-bent speculators whom he accused of trying to cash in at the expense of the Nation's economy and the war effort. Brannan called the speculation "excessive and unrestrained."

The Secretary said then that speculation had been most marked in the soybean market.

Asked about that, Mehl told a reporter last night there had been heavy trading in soybeans, as much as a million bushels a day by some traders. By law, the CEA gets reports on commodities futures operations involving those trading as much as 200,000 bushels a day.

In answer to another question, Mehl said a "considerable number of persons with Chinese names" has figured in the reports.

The law prevents the CEA from identifying such traders unless legal action is brought against them.

Asked whether any evidence so far indicates violations or attempts to corner the market, Mehl would not comment. An investor to "corner" a market must get command of a stock or commodity so as to be able to set his own prices.

Engineer Is Killed As Diesels Collide

Des Moines, Iowa, Aug. 6 (AP).—A Rock Island Railroad engineer was killed early today in the collision of two Diesel locomotives at a siding near Des Moines.

H. W. Frank, 54, of Rock Island, Ill., engineer of the westbound Corn Belt Rocket, was trapped in his locomotive, which caught fire after a collision with an eastbound Diesel locomotive that was hauling a stock train.

Seventeen cars of the freight train were derailed. Hogs, dressed meats and cantaloupes were scattered along the right of way.

Arabs Say British Bomb Yemen Tribesmen

Cairo, Egypt, Aug. 6 (AP).—An Arab League source said tonight that British RAF planes had bombed and strafed Yemeni tribesmen in several raids last week. The source said the raids occurred near the border between Yemen and Britain's Aden protectorate, at the southern end of the Arabian peninsula.

British officials here were not available for comment.

Kazan Took His Actors Where He Found Them

By Sonia Stein

THE PRODUCER of "Panic in the Streets" sent more crew members than actors to New Orleans for the filming of the picture. It's not that the picture has a small cast, it's just that Director Elia Kazan prefers to draw most of his cast right out of the dark doorways and murky alleys where the picture takes place.

Kazan used 114 amateurs—policemen, salesmen, cab drivers, teachers and skid row characters—in support of professional Actors Paul Douglas, Richard Widmark, Barbara Bel Geddes and a handful of other actors from New York.

Using local talent makes a more "honest" presentation, according to Kazan and honesty is one of his major criteria for judging theater. He had a high old time going into police headquarters, a union hiring hall, a cheap cafe and a smelly old hotel to make this film about a threatened epidemic of pneumonic plague—a lung relative of bubonic plague—which was the terrifying Black Death of the Middle Ages.

Even the dialogue springs from an honest source; when not satisfied with the original dialogue he had the actors put it into their own words. One old lady ad libbed such sulphurous expletives, the sound track had to be killed.

Kazan startled a companion by enthusing over some ugly potted dwarfed orange trees in a corridor of the New Orleans City Hall. "Those are ugly. What's the matter with you?" the associate asked Kazan. "Oh," Kazan agreed excitedly, "they're ugly but they are honest. In Hollywood they'd never let you decorate a set with such bad taste."

Kazan also startled associates by saying that this was the first time he felt he could make a picture say what he wanted it to. "I've always had to make concessions to the camera, the lights or the sound apparatus before," he explained. "For some reason, this time the camera became a positive instrument and the other things weren't such nuisances. I think there was a psychological advantage in knowing the only possible way this story could be told was with a camera. We've got values into the picture that couldn't be reproduced on the stage."

Directed 'Gentleman's Agreement'

The announcement was startling because the man who said he'd finally learned how to get the most out of a film has already won an academy award for his direction of "Gentleman's Agreement," and has also directed such critically acclaimed items as "A Tree Grows in Brooklyn," "Boomerang" and "Pinky." His stage work which he now seems on the verge of deserting, has included "Skin of Our Teeth," "Death of a Salesman" and "A Streetcar Named Desire."

In "Panic in the Streets," which is based on a story by Edna and Edward Anhalt, Kazan has wide scope for his camera. The tense search for an unknown killer who may be incubating the deadly and highly contagious plague, goes in and out of dirty restaurants and bars, smuggling ships, the city morgue and a huge coffee warehouse and under the wharfs where more than one kind of rat plays tag. But the major excitement comes from the interplay of the actors, amateur or otherwise.

Actor Can't Describe It

Kazan's trick in working with actors is this: "I try to put them at ease and get them psychologically right before a scene. I hunt into their lives like a detective for something that has happened to them in the script. It may be far fetched but if it stirs up the kind of emotion we need, it's good."

We have to take his word for it, since actors never seem to describe afterward the treatment Kazan has given them, and he does it in whispers so there's no eavesdropping possible. Anyway, it works. He talked a New Orleans police lieutenant, who was playing a mortally ill man, into such a state he actually retched.

Part of his talent seems to be patience. He ran a group of police roundup characters through a scene 38 times until he got what he wanted.

Kazan himself may be on hand Tuesday night when members of the Public Health Service who cope with such terrifying matters as epidemics, and other Government officials will attend a premiere at the Playhouse. The picture will open to the general public Wednesday at the Playhouse.

TONIGHT'S THE NIGHT New York gets to see Henrik Ibsen's "Lady from the Sea" which has been playing at the Olney Theater all week. The Festival Theater, which is taking the show to the big city for a two-week run—the second in its presently scheduled series of four revivals—is working under a couple of economic handicaps. It spends approximately one tenth of what a regular commercial show would spend on production, according to Director Sam Wanamaker, and is able to rehearse only a week or so before going on the road. Two weeks on the road serves as a kind of rehearsal with an audience, then, with no further ado, right into New York.

Wanamaker says, with a sigh of relief, that he doesn't think the economic problems show up on the stage. And, with another sigh, he allows as how they do show up in aching backs. He is to act in the last show and is directing the other three.

The Festival group is very proud it is charging less for tickets than anybody else on Broadway—anybody else with no subsidy from the city that is. Top tickets cost $3, says Wanamaker, with the glow of a true theater lover.

Although Wanamaker and Terese Hayden who did the play-picking for the Festival, didn't have this Ibsen item on their original list, Wanamaker got thoroughly interested in it when Luise Rainer said she'd like to play it. He thinks it stands a pretty fair chance of being accepted by a New York audience today. "Freudian ideas and psychoanalysis are widely accepted today. 'Lady From the Sea' has more meaning for us today than 'Hedda Gabler' and 'The Doll's House' do, because the others deal with certain problems like the emancipation of women which are peculiar to another time," he explains.

"Not," he adds cryptically, "that I think women are emancipated today.

THE PALACE will slip in a sneak preview tonight at 8:30. You can catch the regular feature, "Three Little Words," beforehand at 6:45 or afterward at 10.

Keith's goes back to its regular schedule this week after half a week of opening at the crack of dawn. "Treasure Island" now has its first showing at 11:30 a. m. "Beaver Valley," that masterpiece of animal acting produced by Walt Disney, has its first showing at 1:15. Watching "Beaver Valley," you'll see that the waddles, and wiggles and lopes, and slithering that Disney's cartoon animals do, come straight out of nature. This is a beautiful little picture, full of humor and grace, and only about half an hour long. Technicolor, to be sure.

"LAUGH PAGLIACCI" comes to the Little Theater today for a two-day run. It is the second in a five-part series of paired opera films which will run on the Little screen until August 17. Here Beniamino Gigli, Alida Vali and bambino enjoy a few minutes in the sunshine. Also on the program today and tomorrow is "Musica Proibita." Others in the musical series will be "Rossini," "L'Elisir D'Amore," "The Life of Verdi" and "Dream of Butterfly"

5 Agencies Urge Banks to Aid in Inflation Fight

Five supervisory agencies yesterday joined in an appeal to banks and other lending institutions to avoid making loans that would add to inflationary pressures.

The agencies supervise lending by banks and building and loan associations. They suggested a voluntary "defense loan policy" to help keep down prices and conserve materials for defense purposes.

The Federal Reserve Board, Comptroller of the Currency, Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, Home Loan Bank Board, and National Association of Supervisors of State Banks signed the statement.

"An abnormally high evilian demand for goods, along with an increased need for military materials, is creating a strong upward pressure on prices," they said. "A continuation of the rapid growth of credit . . . would add to inflationary pressures and seriously handicap the necessary expansion of military production."

Gov. Clements, Dawson Win In Kentucky

Louisville, Ky., Aug. 6 (U.P.)—Decisive returns from yesterday's Kentucky primary showed today that Gov. Earle C. Clements and former Federal Judge Charles J. Dawson won thumping victories for Democratic and Republican nominations for U. S. Senator.

With more than 75 percent of the precincts counted, Clements led Secretary of State George Glenn Hatcher by as much as four to one. Earlier, Charles L. Whittle, former chairman of the State Public Service Commission, conceded victory to Dawson.

At least eight of the State's nine incumbent candidates for Congressman were nominated. In the Seventh District primary, there was a tight race between Representative Carl D. Perkins of Hindman, and Dr. Paul B. Hall of Paintsville. Returns from more than 60 percent of the precincts gave Perkins a slight edge.

Wife Slain On 9th Nuptial Anniversary

Richmond, Va., Aug. 6 (AP).—A 35-year-old plumber led police today to the partially clad body of his wife, whom officers said he admitted killing on the couple's ninth wedding anniversary when he found her with another man.

The body of Mrs. Eunice M. Williams, 27-year-old mother of four children, was lying in the woods near the Williams home 2 miles east of Richmond. She had been shot in the side.

Her husband, Edward Williams, was charged with murder and held in the Henrico County Jail.

Police said Williams told them he and his wife were drinking at a Richmond restaurant when Mrs. Williams left with a friend she introduced only as "Jimmy." Officers said Williams told them he went home, found his wife was not there and went looking for the couple with a 12-gauge shotgun.

Finding the pair not far from the home, Williams fired a shotgun blast in the direction of his wife and her companion, police quoted him as saying. He said he fired a second shot at the man who fled down the road.

Williams said he did not know his wife had been struck by the first shot, police said, and left her near the side of the road. He returned to the scene early today and moved her body deeper into the woods when he discovered she was dead, police quoted him as saying.

Pieces of the woman's clothing were scattered through the woods near the road and near the spot where the body was found, police said. They said Williams could not account for the way the clothing was spread about.

Henrico Police Capt. W. J. Escho said Williams went to the home of Richmond Police Officer J. R. Key later today and reported his wife's death.

Home Rule And Korea

In two world wars the United States has posed as the champion of democracy, of government by the consent of the governed. And now we have intervened in Korea to counteract an aggressive disregard of democratic principles. Meanwhile, Soviet Russia asserts that American democracy is false because we flagrantly violate the premises of democracy by discriminating against particular groups in our country because they have a different national origin or racial derivation, and by depriving the inhabitants of our Territories of the rights of local self-government. Under this banner Soviet Russia has carried on the most intensive propaganda to win over the peoples of the earth to its side.

These charges have the sting of truth insofar as the United States has subordinated and exploited certain racial groups and has denied self-rule to the people of Washington. Here in the Nation's Capital we witness the most glaring denial of the principles of democracy by the country that claims to be its greatest exponent and champion. The Capital of the United States, with all its memorials dedicated to liberty, maintains a policy of Negro segregation in housing, in the schools, in most forms of business, in hospitals, and in churches. Its inhabitants are denied the right to vote in local and national elections. Thus we disarm ourselves when we appear before the world as the champions of civil and political rights.

Congress has recently begun to correct these conditions. It has granted the Filipinos their independence. It has authorized the Puerto Ricans to frame their own constitution. It is about to admit Alaska and Hawaii to statehood. The Senate has given its consent to home rule for Washington. It remains for the House to follow suit. Now when democracy faces a special peril is the time for Congress to set an example to the world of the sincerity of our democratic claims. The Korean conflict, far from reducing the importance of home rule for Washington, actually has magnified it. Let us correct this defect in our democratic armor now!

Savings For Defense

Even so ardent an advocate of budget-balancing as Senator Byrd questions the feasibility of financing the cost of the defense program on a pay-as-you-go basis. He concludes that Federal expenditures will be increased by some 20 to 30 billion dollars yearly, but doubts whether much more than 10 billion dollars of additional revenue will be obtained from taxes. If the Senator's predictions come true—and they are based on reasonable assumptions—the Treasury will have to borrow many billions of dollars for an indefinite number of years.

Will that borrowing increase inflationary pressures by adding to the amount of purchasing power in the hands of the public? That depends upon the methods adopted by the Treasury to raise money. Deficits financed by selling Government securities to nonbank investors—that is, to insurance companies, savings institutions, business concerns and individuals—are not inflationary, if payments are made out of savings. In such case, purchasing power is simply shifted from the purchasers to the Government, leaving the public with less money to spend for consumption goods or for new private investment. Borrowing of this kind, therefore, actually assists efforts to control inflation.

The alternative—and, from the Treasury's viewpoint, the easier—method of borrowing is to sell securities to commercial banks. The banks pay for their purchases by crediting the Treasury's account, and the result is a creation of new purchasing power in the form of bank deposits that is highly inflationary. During World War II the Government laid the foundation for postwar inflation, first, by relying too heavily on borrowing instead of taxes and, secondly, by selling too large a proportion of its securities to commercial banks. To avoid a repetition of the mistakes of the past, it will be necessary for the Government to conduct a vigorous campaign to raise money by selling securities to nonbank investors rather than commercial banks.

That could be done in various ways: for example, through offerings of long-term bonds ineligible for purchase by commercial banks, carrying sufficiently high rates of interest to attract investment support from wealthy individuals, corporations, etc. Efforts should also be made to absorb excess purchasing power through increased sales of savings bonds under the payroll deduction plan. In 1944 25 million or more people participated in such plans, and deductions amounted to almost half a billion dollars monthly. However, by 1948 the number of participants had shrunk to a mere 7.5 million.

To be sure, noninflationary methods of deficit financing result in higher interest charges than sales of securities to commercial banks. But the immediate cost to the Government would be many times outweighed by avoidance of an inflationary type of financing that might add many billions of dollars to the over-all cost of running the Government.

India's Policy

When Premier Nehru says that India's Korea policy is based upon resistance to aggression, localizing it, and leaving the future of Korea to be decided by Koreans—there will be no disagreement from sober-minded Americans. Indeed, this seems to be the policy of the United States. What evidently bothers the Indian Prime Minister is the spread of our current anti-aggression policy in Asia beyond resistance to the aggressor in Korea. He seems to object to what we are doing unilaterally in Formosa and in Indo-China. As to the latter, we are in agreement with him, and, furthermore, feel with him that the major error of our foreign policy in Asia is that it has been adulterated by our acting as a kind of quasi-proxy for the colonial powers of Europe. Here is a mark of failure in American diplomacy in Europe as well as in Asia; for it is no service to the over-all interest of peace preservation to have the bulk of the armed forces of France and Britain, and soon perhaps of America, tied up in faraway places in Asia.

As to Formosa, too, we seem to sense Nehru's anxiety, for General MacArthur's spectacular but surprise visit to Formosa has left us ourselves with a troubled mind. The object of stated policy is to neutralize Formosa, and this is the duty that was given specifically to the Seventh Fleet. That involves its defense, to be sure, but the stress upon defense instead of neutralization is hardly an insurance of our purity. What, for instance, is the meaning of the expressed glee at Taipeh after General MacArthur left? We hope in this connection that Mr. Harriman, who has just arrived in Tokyo on an unheralded mission, will put things straight with General MacArthur and that Mr. Truman will clarify the position as soon as Mr. Harriman returns. This is only fair to India, whose Ambassador in Peking is working with might and main to neutralize the Communists. At least MacArthur ought, for the time being, to wear one hat—as the U. N. commander.

Having said this, however, we think Nehru ought to appreciate that Formosa, so far from being China, is in its own category. Japanese-occupied Formosa was promised to Chiang Kai-shek in Cairo in 1943, but only as part of the peace settlement with Japan. This is always ignored by Nehru. Also ignored is the fact that the Communist government has declared null and void all arrangements made by Chiang Kai-shek with foreign powers, including what was done at Cairo. Long ago our Government should have anticipated this action and the subsequent Sino-Soviet agreement at Yalta as well as at Cairo; and this move is still open to us. But what would Nehru say if we did this—that is to say, merely did what the Chinese Communists have already done? Surely he does not want to be a party to the doctrine of having it both ways.

Moreover, the Indians and the rest of the peace-loving world are under obligation to bolster up the strength of the American arm in defeating the aggressor. Nehru recognizes, presumably, that had it not been for America the aggressor would by this time have been triumphant in Korea and the United Nations a nullity. Yet he seems to be constantly running away from wholehearted support and joint action—as if he doesn't want to prejudice Indian leadership in Asia. Clearly individual action to suppress aggression would be merely a worse than idle gesture on the Indian model. The whole success of the U. N. action in Korea calls for unity and not independence and keeping your hands free; any other course is a contradiction in terms. It was not a service to the United Nations, for example, to support the Russian effort last week to tyrannize the Security Council and ruin the anti-aggression campaign.

When the aggression has been defeated, then will be the time to see that the peace is U. N.-made, as is the war. Nehru's services at that time will be invaluable, as, indeed, they are now in his representations in Peking. Then also will be the time to take up the question of the Chinese seat in the United Nations. But this cannot be made the subject of the kind of deal that Nehru was Kremlin-trapped into sponsoring. It was the deal at Yalta and Cairo that landed us all in the present mess, not the lack of recognition of Communist China, as Mr. Nehru says. It was that deal that unleashed the drive of the modern Peter the Great in the Kremlin to bring under Soviet domination the compact and immensely rich area of the Siberian Maritime provinces, Manchuria and Korea. It was a renewal of the drive repelled by Japan in the Russo-Japanese war of 1904-5.

Libraries Abroad

Just how much the additional budget for the foreign information and education program has suffered at the hands of the House Appropriations Subcommittee cannot be seen until detailed figures are disclosed. Nonetheless, it is dismaying that this group, according to members, has cut "very substantially" into funds to maintain American libraries abroad and to bring foreigners to this country for study. The subcommittee is to be congratulated for providing money for six new radio transmitters to try to "crack the Iron Curtain." But Congress ought not to fall into the error of thinking that the Voice of America is the whole program. Eighteen million of the 82 million additional dollars requested by President Truman was for libraries and exchange of persons. To trim these features is to impair some of the most valuable work the information and education program can do; it is like providing guns with no ammunition.

The spoken word, carried by radio to people behind the Iron Curtain, can inspire hope. But the printed word, as found in libraries on both sides of the curtain, is far more lasting and, indeed, more efficacious, as indicated by the voracious manner in which American libraries have been used. To show foreigners America is of course one of the best advertisements of all. It applies with especial pertinence to such countries as Yugoslavia, now that we are encouraging Titoism among the satellites and trying to encourage further defections from Moscow's brand of imperialism. These aspects of the foreign information and education program are just as much a part of over-all defense as are bazookas and P-80s. Indeed, in the spread of knowledge about America and its aims, this program can be said to be our only offensive weapon.

Costly Economy

The Senate's 10 percent cut in the budgets of nondefense Government agencies is a prime example of the wrong way to economize. Especially hard hit are such departments as State, Commerce, and Treasury—the departments that will have to carry an extra work load because of the expanded defense program and the Korean involvement. Such savings will be illusory. What is now cut out will have to be put back by later deficiency appropriations. Meantime the morale of employes of key departments will be shattered by the prospect of mass firings, efficiency will be lowered, and defense preparations will suffer. The best that can be said for this obnoxious rider is that it is not nearly so bad as the Taber and Jensen amendments that the House attached to the omnibus appropriations bill. But its passage insures drastic over-all cuts in the bill before it reaches the President.

The rational and reasonable method of reducing nonessential expenditures, without endangering national security, would be for the House and Senate appropriations committees to make another survey of appropriations with a view to eliminating projects of the pork barrel type. The Post applauds the recent action of the House Appropriations Committee in ordering a resurvey of nonessential appropriations, as well as Senator O'Mahoney's rejected proposal to instruct both House and Senate Appropriations Committees to restudy the budget and report its recommendations to Congress by the end of this month. For the time being, however, the Senate's action dashes hopes of constructive economies. It is Duke of York economy—marching up the hill as a preliminary to marching down again.

Presidential Loyalty

Representative Percy Priest has just had an object lesson in human nature as it applies to the distinguished occupant of the Blair House. Mr. Priest had suggested that because of world developments Secretary of State Acheson and Secretary of Defense Johnson ought to resign in the interest of national unity. Mr. Truman replied somewhat tartly at his press conference that they would not resign as long as he was President. So that's that.

However, there is demonstrated again Mr. Truman's fierce and sometimes disconcerting loyalty to his subordinates when they are under fire—a loyalty already demonstrated to embarrassing degree in the cases of Mon Wallgren and such other worthies as Edwin W. Pauley and Maj. Gen. Harry Vaughan. In some cases cronyism was a better word than loyalty, though you might call it loyalty by reaction. Indeed, it has come to be almost a formula that if you want to insure permanence of a presidential appointee in a job, attack him publicly. We do not suggest that such appointees have encouraged attacks in order to make themselves solid with their chief, but the thought must have occurred to them.

Loyalty to subordinates is a fine quality—within limits prescribed by the public interest. Mr. Acheson and Mr. Johnson apart, this is a time when something more than personalities is involved, when the thought ought to be constantly how most effectively to strengthen the Administration in a period of crisis. No one yet has used the technique of praising a man lavishly in order to get rid of him, but, considering the usual presidential reaction, it might be worth a try.

Mobilization Brains

Formation of a 12-man committee representing labor, industry, agriculture and the public to help the National Security Resources Board in mobilization planning is a significant stride forward. It is essential for all segments of the economy to feel that they have a part in whatever emergency plans are drafted. This is particularly true as respects manpower legislation—but it also has a bearing on the implementation of any standby rationing, price control and wage control powers given the President. NSRB Chairman Symington has been quietly consulting various groups on this score; the current proposal is especially noteworthy since it originates with labor. It has been the tendency in past mobilization planning to call primarily upon persons with management experience. But management has no monopoly on ideas. Labor and agriculture, which must contribute so much to the carrying out of any mobilization, need to have a voice in the kind of planning that is done. We hope that the new group, working as a unit, will be far more than merely advisory, and that it will take an active part in the NSRB's work. Not the least of the advantages of this type of setup is that it may forestall demands for partisan representation of the kind in which labor or industry look upon certain individuals as "their" men.

"Spanish Omelet"

It seems to me that the best answer to your August 3 editorial and cartoon on Spain is the statement in the same day's New York Times reading: "United States consulates in Spain have had a steady stream of boys and men offering their services as volunteers to fight in Korea. Among those who seek to volunteer are many veterans of the Blue Division—volunteers who fought with Germany against the Russians. These are said to be anxious to prove that they fought against communism rather than for Germany."

Pari passu we miss any news from Israel to the effect that Israeli volunteers are willing to fight for the United States, a country to whom they owe their existence as a nation and as individuals through direct American intervention in their behalf. But Mr. Ben Gurion, according to the New York Times is planning instead to float an Israeli government loan here besides using the $200,000,000 Jewish United Appeal funds. A few volunteers from Israel will in part repay for the enmity of the Arab world which this country incurred directly in behalf of Israel. You have left Mr. Ben Gurion's picture out of the editorial and cartoon of today.

Japanese Thanks

When we, 14 members of the Japanese Diet Delegation, went over to the United States some time ago through the good will of Gen. Douglas MacArthur and your Government, in order to study democracy in action through the congressional system and State Legislatures, a hearty welcome and every facility possible were extended to us, for which we are deeply obliged to you.

As we have achieved our desired aims satisfactorily by obtaining minute knowledge on your Congress and State Legislatures through your kind guidance and assistance, we are determined to use that precious knowledge for the further democratization of Japan, and and eventually to contribute to the peace of the world.

We have the honor to express hereby our deep felt respect and our profound gratitude to you for all the trouble you have taken for us and the hospitality and guidance you have so generously extended to us at the time.

Exploited Grievances

On July 31 you published, under the heading "Segregated Water," a letter signed "Colored Mother." It tells how the writer, driving through northern Virginia, was repeatedly refused water for her infant son. Now, in your issue of August 3, comes another letter from a lady who, having read this extraordinary story, "sees red."

All I can say on this subject is that I was born and reared in Virginia and have spent much of my life there; that I am fairly well acquainted with most of the State, and with all classes of its people, and that I have never before heard of anyone who would not give a Negro water. Assuming the story to be literally true, as I must, I still believe it gives an entirely incorrect impression of Virginia customs.

One cannot expect Negroes to be silent about their grievances, but I think it not unreasonable to ask them not to exaggerate or exploit them unduly just now, when, as they themselves remind us, such reports serve well the purpose of our enemies.

Message To Slaves

We want to get a powerful message across to the enslaved peoples of Communist countries. The shorter it is the greater its effect. I suggest the following one to sum up the difference between communism and true democracy. That or a similar message should be broadcast to the people of Communist countries night and day until it burns its meaning into their minds and makes them turn on their tormentors and destroy them!

"People of Communist countries! The world knows you are slaves! You are chained by a handful of assassins from Moscow. Communism rules by murderers who hate the people. Communism preaches peace but everywhere teaches war. Democracy is ruled by the majority of people. Democracy gives life, liberty and happiness. The Communists are but few. You are millions more than they. Destroy the assassins in every way possible. Thereby restore your freedom and bring quick peace to the world."

Supply And Demand

In noting Mr. Stull's July 30 comments and remarks about hoarding, explaining that price rises are due to supply and demand, I wonder just how far that idea is sold to the people who read Mr. Stull's column.

Contrasted with Mr. Stull's article is a recent news item about an immense amount of foodstuffs bought by the Government to keep prices up. The question was whether it should be sold to the Army or the Veterans Administration or practically given away. Further, one other paper published an item stating that the Agriculture Department had announced that it would continue to purchase an item of food through September, in order to uphold price.

In my book of economics, the application of this law on supply and demand doesn't work. Without considering the law of supply and demand, the practice of subsidies at a time like this just does not make sense to me.

Virtue In Silence

There is an odd verse in the Book of Revelation. It is: "There was once quiet in Heaven for the space of half an hour." Why is it impossible to find quiet in this noisy world for even a second? People should meditate more, as T. S. Williams points out in your issue of July 29.

Zeno, a Greek philosopher, of all virtues chose silence. Marcus Auerlius wrote, "I have often regretted my speech, never my silence." And David said, in the Psalms, "When I remember Thee upon my bed, and meditate on Thee, in the night watches."

Alaska Land Rights

As an Alaskan who personally believes that the Indians, Eskimos and Aleuts of Alaska have a moral and perhaps legal claim through aboriginal rights to certain lands in the Territory, I desire to take issue with Eduard C. Lindeman, vice president of the Association of American Affairs, Inc., who, in his August 1 letter, stated that the land rights of the native people of Alaska would be sacrificed to the cause of Alaska statehood if certain language now appearing in the statehood bill is retained.

That language specifies that until the people of Alaska and the Congress take action to carry out the provisions of the enabling act no reservations "for use and occupancy of the natives of Alaska" are to be created in Alaska by authority of any existing law.

That authority lies with the Secretary of the Interior through legislation enacted in 1936 extending to that official the right to create reservations in Alaska. Mr. Lindeman states that "Confirmation of Aleut, Eskimo and Indian people of Alaska to ownership of the lands they now occupy and use is just, and it is very long overdue," a statement with which I would not quarrel; but I do quarrel with his implication that the present authority of the Interior Secretary to create reservations is an instrument for settlement of the land question.

A reservation gives no title whatsoever to natives or to groups of natives. The Supreme Court so ruled in 1949 when it declared that the Secretary of the Interior cannot dispose of Federal lands through any authority conferred upon him to create native reservations in Alaska.

A reservation only serves to set the natives apart from other residents of Alaska, in an area of the United States where the social and economic welfare of the native people of Alaska is improving steadily and progressing in strides along with the social and economic welfare of all Alaska's residents. The natives are members of the Alaska Legislature, they vote, they enjoy all the privileges of citizenship and have been leaders in the fight for statehood. A reservation system is retrogressive rather than progressive.

It is estimated that a maximum of two years would elapse before statehood would finally come about through the terms of the pending statehood bill. That is how long the language referred to would be in effect. Secretary of the Interior Chapman has declared publicly that he will create no more reservations in Alaska "until there has been an opportunity to reconsider thoroughly the national policy toward the Indians, and other native groups." That certainly will not take place within the next two years.

It appears, therefore, that whether the language objected to by Mr. Lindeman is or is not within the statehood bill is purely academic. Since reservations confer no title to the natives of the land in question, and in no sense can be considered a solution to the aboriginal rights question, it would seem that Mr. Lindeman has made a fictional rather than factual presentation. Those rights should be determined through Congress and the courts in legislation entirely apart from the statehood issue. If it is found certain land belongs to the natives, either individually or as groups, those natives should obtain title to the land or be paid in cash if they so desire.

Matter Of Fact

By Stewart Alsop

He's Been Right Before

WINSTON CHURCHILL'S recent speech in the House of Commons is curiously sad. It is bleak and rather bare, with few of the old flourishes. But it is full of the sort of facts which it sometimes seems that only a Churchill is capable of facing.

Remorselessly, Churchill marshals the facts of Western weakness in Europe, and Soviet strength: twelve divisions against 175; a few hundred tanks against more than 40,000; 19,000 modern aircraft against a fraction of that number; reduced naval strength against a submarine fleet far more powerful than Hitler's; and so on. Remorselessly, Churchill draws the parallel—"the preparations of Western Union to defend itself certainly stand on a far lower level than those of South Korea."

The substance of Churchill's estimate of the present situation is that "there is at present no effective defense in Western Europe beyond the Channel," and that England itself is in greater danger than in the worst days of 1940. Churchill does not spell out the meaning of this situation to the United States. But its meaning is clear enough.

FOR THE FIRST TIME this country faces the prospect, in case of general war, of almost the whole world outside the Western Hemisphere either actively united against us, or, like England, neutralized and rendered powerless to help. This is an intolerable situation, for the United States as well as for Europe. The first question which must now be asked is how long this intolerable situation is likely to last.

Although the problem of the defense of the Atlantic community has in no essential way been affected by the attack on Korea, it is at least true that since Korea all the sham plans for Atlantic defense have been hurriedly and rather shamefacedly discarded. New plans, based on the realities of the situation rather than comforting delusions, are now being devised, while the Atlantic community is beginning to embark on a serious rearmament program.

Yet the terrible situation so bleakly described by Churchill will not be altered overnight. No firm plans and estimates have yet been made. But as of today it is the best guess of the best planners that two full years from now—in August, 1952—there will be no more than 35 ready divisions, British, American and Continental, to set against the 175 mobilized divisions of the Red army. And even this estimate is based on the assumption that the standby arms plants in this country and abroad, which are now mere shells, are filled with the necessary machines and trained men as rapidly as possible.

This 35-division force envisaged for two years from now will be, to be sure, an entirely serious force. Eight to ten of the divisions will be fully armed. The new plans call for great emphasis in tactical and ground support planes — an element blithely disregarded in pre-Korea days. Even so, the lesson of Korea fresh in their minds, the best experts privately doubt that so small a force could do more than hold a relatively large beachhead somewhere on the Continent, in case of war.

Not until 1953 or 1954, it is now believed, will it be possible to mount a really serious defense of Western Europe. By then it should be possible to put between fifty and sixty fully equipped divisions in the field, including twelve to fifteen armored divisions, and with massive air support. Thus it will not be until 1953 or 1954 that the Soviet monopoly of power in Europe can really be broken.

For three and perhaps four years, therefore, a single question will haunt the Western world. Will the Soviet rulers allow their monopoly of power in Europe to be broken in the long interval before Western Europe can be seriously defended?

Somewhat obliquely, Churchill addressed himself to this question in his speech. He clearly believes that the answer to the question depends largely on the rate of Soviet production of atomic bombs. He notes that "between having the secret and making any large number of bombs, there is undoubtedly a considerable interval." And he believes that there are factors, especially the desperate efforts of the Soviets to get even small quantities of uranium, which "seem—I only say seem—to justify a hopeful view."

THIS HOPEFUL VIEW is clearly that the "atomic bomb deterrent, which is what we are living on now," will continue to operate during the yawning gap of three or four years before conventional Western force can be rebuilt. But what if this hopeful view is not justified? Then "we must never abandon hope that a peaceful settlement may be reached with the Soviet government if a resolute effort is made on the basis not of our present weakness but of American atomic strength." This clearly means something very like a showdown with the Soviet Union—now. Surely this is a brave course for an English leader, fully aware of the naked vulnerability of his country, to propose. But Churchill has been right before this. And if the hopeful view is not justified, it is hard to imagine any other rational course.

Today and Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

The Big Trap?

MR. MALIK'S opening performances raised the old question of how much is deeply and subtly calculated and how much is rude and primitive violence. No doubt both Machiavelli and Caliban are at work in the Kremlin and with considerable expense—at least in the Western countries—the methods of Caliban interfere with the plans of Machiavelli.

Lippmann

But a long experience in attempting to understand Soviet policy has persuaded me that it is more prudent, even if it does not always prove to be correct—to assume that the Russians know what they are doing, and that however angry they may sound or however infuriating they may be to us, they are acting on cold calculation and are not blinded by their passions.

MR. MALIK, taking his turn as president of the Security Council, proposed as was his right and duty an agenda: the Council should take up first the question of Chinese representation and second of a peaceful solution in Korea. Now the interesting fact is that if the Soviet Union really wants what it says it wants, it could seat the Peiping representative and it could end the Korean war. The alleged issue as to which comes first would be no issue at all if the will to settle both questions existed. Fifteen months ago Mr. Malik and Mr. Jessup disposed quite successfully of a similar phony issue—which should come first, the lifting of the blockade of Berlin or the agreement to call the Council of Foreign Ministers.

But Mr. Malik has presented both questions in the very way which makes it impossible to settle either of them. That cannot have been due to misinformation or stupidity. Mr. Malik is very well informed. Therefore there is no escape from the conclusion that his present purpose is to prevent a diplomatic solution in Korea and to prevent the Peiping government from being represented at the U. N.

MUCH depends on whether his present purpose is also his ultimate purpose. The least sinister view, which we must hope is the correct one, is that Mr. Malik has been instructed to stall until the military outcome in Korea is clearer. The Soviet terms for "a peaceful settlement in Korea" will surely be different if we hold than if we lose the Pusan beachhead. Mr. Malik's putting the Korean question behind the Chinese, which would take weeks to settle, indicates that his government thinks that time is still on the side of the North Koreans, and that a cease fire now would prevent them from conquering the whole country.

This maneuver, which enables the Soviet Union to connive at the continuation of the war, would not have been possible had the Western powers not become snarled up because Chinese policy is mixed up in partisan politics in this country. Had the Chinese question been settled on its merits last winter, as almost all the governments concerned would have preferred, Mr. Malik would now be facing the very awkward question of why his government does nothing to stop the slaughter and the devastation in Korea. As it is, though Senator Austin has argued the Korean case with great dignity and a noble fervor, our diplomatic action is so constricted within narrow and rigid limits by our own Chinese entanglement that we can only denounce but are unable to frustrate Mr. Malik's maneuver. He is able to wait to see how the Korean campaign works out.

THIS is, I repeat, the least sinister view. It is, however, not at all impossible that the Soviet purpose is to embroil us with China once we are heavily committed in Korea. There are many reasons for fearing that this may be their intention. Thus, while standing forth as the champion of Red China, they have persistently sabotaged a solution which would bring Red China into diplomatic contact with the Western world. Moreover, the military advantages to them of pinning down the French army in Indo-China, the British in Malaya, and the American in Korea are obvious. It leaves Europe without the cadres of professional troops with which to build its defenses.

Furthermore, if their policy in the Far East did lead to war, they would begin the war with many advantages. In a Far Eastern war we could count on few allies except the white dominions of the British Commonwealth. No great Asiatic nation would be likely to give us even much moral support, and on the European continent the members of the Atlantic Pact could and would give us little more than token assistance and a kind of benevolent neutrality.

I DO NOT mean to be an alarmist and I hope I am completely mistaken. But if we are dealing with Machiavelli, whom we must outwit—and not merely with Caliban, whom we outvote—then let us sound the alert and let us be very much on our guard against walking into the big trap of a general war in the Far East.

U.S. Ship Bound for Indo-China Hit by 5 Shells Off Hongkong

Hongkong, Aug. 6 (AP).—Five small shells were fired at the American freighter Steel Rover today near the entrance to Hongkong harbor.

Gilman and Co., agents for the 8089-ton Isthmian Line ship, said some splinters damaged the hull slightly above the waterline but repairs would be unnecessary.

They said the shells were believed to have been fired from two nearby junks but could have come from the Chinese Communist mainland adjoining this British colony.

The Steel Rover, en route to Saigon, Indo-China with a cargo that included jeeps and trailers destined for the French, put back into Hongkong but will resume the voyage Monday.

Nationalist Air Force Destroys 10 Red Junks

Tapei, Formosa, Aug. 6 (AP).—Destruction of 30 big junks and more than 100 smaller ones in raids on Communist shipping near Quemoy Island was announced tonight by the Chinese Nationalist air force.

It said the attacks, carried out all day Sunday in fine weather, were directed against 800 Red vessels assembled near Quemoy, a Nationalist outpost island just off the Communist mainland.

Both bombers and fighters with rockets participated, all returning safely despite antiaircraft fire, the communique said.

The attacks presumably are considered by the United States to fall within a defensive category, thus escaping President Truman's ban on Nationalist action against the Communist mainland.

The Nationalists say Quemoy is imminently threatened with Red invasion. A Nationalist spokesman Saturday denied speculation that General MacArthur had recommended a Nationalist withdrawal there.

Meanwhile unconfirmed rumors spread wildly through Tapei that 300,000 troops of Gen. Chen Yi's Communist Party had revolted.

Chen commands the Red Third field army, listed by the Communist radio as the force assigned to conquer Formosa.

The rumors gave no details of the reputed revolt, and Nationalist sources said they knew nothing whatever about it.

8 Methodist Bishops Hit 'Social Action'

Atlanta, Aug. 6 (AP).—Eight bishops have accused the Methodist Federation for Social Action of misusing "the name of a great church" in defiance of "our traditions and deep convictions."

A signed release referred to a meeting of the federation at Xenia, Ohio, July 18-19. There the Social Action group unanimously adopted a statement saying:

"We believe the right of any individual to speak his mind as to what is right or wrong is democracy's best safeguard. We therefore call for repeal of the Smith Act as being unconstitutional and designed to suppress any unpopular (at the time) political philosophy. We appeal for presidential amnesty for all who have been convicted under the Smith Act."

The federation pronouncement did not refer directly to 11 Communists convicted in New York under the Smith Act. The bishops, however, quoted press reports as saying it called for their pardon and one of their leaders termed United States action in Korea interference in a civil war.

The bishop asserted:

"We regard such statements from any source as aid to the Communist propaganda and program. We stand unalterably opposed to such statements and positions, and we are assured that the public will not hold the church responsible for the action of any official or some 60 persons who met on their own initiative and expressed their personal views in open defiance of the will and convictions of the great body of the church."

Bishop Arthur J. Moore of Atlanta released the statement for himself and other bishops of the church's Southeastern jurisdiction reaching from West Virginia to Florida.

The statement recited that the church's Council of Bishops in April disowned the federation as an official organization authorized to speak for the church. The council, the bishops said, also expressed its conviction that the word "Methodist" should be dropped from the federation's name.

"We maintain," they said, "that the federation has no ethical right to use the name of a great church to support positions and pronouncements that the church has not approved and that are contrary to our traditions and deep convictions."

9 Ex-State Department Aides Urge Atlantic Union Parley

New York, Aug. 6 (NYHT).—A convention of Atlantic nations to discuss the formation of an Atlantic union to stop Communist aggression was urged today by nine former State Department officials.

The nine men signed a letter addressed to Senator Tom Connally, chairman of the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations, in which attention was called to a resolution before Congress requesting President Truman to invite the other six sponsors of the North Atlantic Pact to a convention that would explore the possibility of a Federal union within the framework of the United Nations.

"Mindful of the realities now confronting the country," the letter said, "we believe that the future peace of our country and the future welfare of the American people require the calling of such a convention."

As extensive and successful as the Marshall Plan, the North Atlantic Pact, and the military assistance program may have been, they are not adequate, the letter said.

The signers of the letters said they believed an Atlantic union could insure peace by an unchallengeable predominance of power, and would not only preserve freedom but expand it as other nations sought to join the new government.

The nine who signed the letter were Robert Woods Bliss, former Assistant Secretary of State and former ambassador to Argentina; Joseph C. Grew, former undersecretary of State and former ambassador to Japan; Garrison Norton, former ambassador to Poland and Italy, and Lithgow Osborne, former ambassador to Norway.

Also Herbert Pell, former minister to Portugal and Hungary; William Phillips, former undersecretary of State and Ambassador to India and England; Paul A. Porter, former chief, American Economic Mission to Greece; and William H. Standley, former ambassador to Russia.

The letter was written under the letterhead of the Atlantic Union Committee for a Federal Convention of Democracies.

Paper Focuses GI Attention On Yugoslavia

By the United Press

The Defense Department says recent reports of "menacing" troop movements behind the Iron Curtain raise the question whether Yugoslavia will be the next victim of Kremlin-sponsored aggression.

The question was posed by the department in its weekly bulletin, "Armed Forces Talk," prepared for use in discussion groups intended to keep American servicemen abreast of world affairs.

It was the first time since the Communist invasion of South Korea that the bulletin had turned away from the Far East to focus GI attention on European developments.

Commenting on fresh reports of "menacing troop movements" on Yugoslavia's borders, the bulletin said the reports may have special significance this time because:

1. The reports "came at a time when the world had just seen a demonstration of aggression by the international Communist movement against the independent Republic of Korea."

2. "The Cominform news organs themselves were likening Yugoslavia to Korea," declaring that the war in Korea was showing the Yugoslav people how to rid themselves of Tito.

The bulletin then went on to ask—without attempting an answer—"whether" international Communists are plotting aggression against Yugoslavia?"

It said the final outcome of the struggle between Marshal Tito and the Kremlin could not be predicted. But, it said, it is not likely that the other six Soviet satellite nations of eastern Europe could break away from the Kremlin as Tito has because they are so closely yoked to Soviet domination.

Nevertheless, the bulletin said, it is possible Tito's nationalist movement "may inspire Communist leaders in eastern Germany, China and elsewhere to demand independence from Moscow dictation while they still are able to do so."

Tydings Called Whining Dog By McCarthy

Milwaukee, Wis., Aug. 6 (U.P.).—Senator Joseph R. McCarthy (R., Wis.) today attacked Chairman Millard E. Tydings (D., Md.) of the Senate Armed Services Committee as "the Administration's whimpering lap dog."

In a speech before the Wisconsin Retail Food Dealers Association, McCarthy charged that Tydings has failed to live up to his responsibility as committee chairman. He termed the position "truly a great job."

"Unfortunately, the man whom the Administration placed in charge of that committee, instead of being a bristling, vigilant watchdog, is the Administration's whimpering lap dog," he said. "This is truly a tragic situation."

McCarthy renewed his charges that American defenses have been sabotaged by a corps of Communists in the State Department. He said that Tydings, as chairman of the Foreign Relations Subcommittee that investigated the accusations, conducted nothing but a "whitewash."

Recalling that Congress appropriated funds for arms aid to South Korea, McCarthy said the program was "sabotaged" in the State Department.

"If that congressional plan to arm South Korea—a plan approved by our military—had not been sabotaged by the State Department, the blood of American boys would not be staining the hills and valleys of South Korea today," he said.

McCarthy also attacked the Milwaukee Journal because, he said, it advised its readers to read a book by "Far Eastern expert" Owen Lattimore. McCarthy once called Lattimore a Red spy, but Tydings' committee found no evidence to support the charge.

Catholic U. Cleric Assails Russia At Field Mass

Harrisonburg, Va., Aug. 6 (AP).—Catholic University's Dean of Philosophy said here today that Russia would not be a threat today if America had remained strong and prepared.

"The Soviet republic has no ethics and no principles of morality at civilized standing," the Very Rev. Ignatius Smith told the annual field mass of the Eightieth (Blue Ridge) Division.

Still referring to Russia, the speaker declared:

"It hates liberty. It hates peace. It hates these because it hates God. It respects nothing but power and might."

If we had always recognized the duplicity and immorality of Russian philosophy and diplomacy, Smith asserted, we would never have attempted to appease or conciliate the Soviet Union.

Cards Reverse Field, Slap League-Leading Phils Twice, 7-1, 2-0

Philadelphia, Aug. 6 (AP).—The St. Louis Cards halted their slide into National League oblivion today by beating the Philadelphia Phillies in both halves of a doubleheader 7 to 1 and 2 to 0.

The Cards banged out 15 hits including five by Red Schoendienst to win the opener.

They made three hits and a Phillies' error account for the winning two runs in the nightcap as Lefty Max Lanier pitched a six-hit shutout. The losses cut the Phillies' lead over second place Boston to three games.

In the opener the Cards ganged up on two pitchers, Bob Miller and Milo Candini. Andy Seminick of the Phils and Stan Musial of the Cardinals each hit homers.

The Cardinals had lost seven of their last nine games prior to today's doubleheader and were 6½ games off the torrid pace being set by the Phillies.

In addition to Schoendienst's five for five, Enos Slaughter had three hits and Stan Musial walloped his fifteenth home run in the opener.

The Cards scored the winning runs in the second game off Church in the fourth inning. Shoendienst was safe when Second Baseman Mike Goliat fumbled his ground ball. Musial singled to right, Schoendienst stopping at second. Slaughter sacrificed and Eddie Kazak singled to score both runs.

Meanwhile the Phillies were helpless against Lanier, especially in the clutch. The doughty left-hander won his 10th victory against four defeats as he struck out four and walked three. Church lost his second. The rookie has credit for five wins.

Bosox Biff Browns Twice; Kinder Hits 4-Run Homer

Chicago, Aug. 6 (AP).—The Boston Red Sox scored twice in the ninth inning to beat the Chicago White Sox, 4 to 3, in the second game of a double-header today after Ellis Kinder pitched and batted them to a 9-to-2 win in the opener.

In the opener Kinder hit a grand slam home run and batted in six runs while pitching a five-hitter for Boston.

Marvin Rickert and Eddie Robinson hit homers for two of the hits off Kinder, who stopped the hitting streak of Chico Carasquel, White Sox shortstop, at 24 straight games.

Before a crowd of 21,035, Joe Dobson and Howie Judson pitched the distance in the second game. Dobson got the nod, his twelfth, when Vern Stephens' force play grounder accounted for one run and Walt Dropo flied out to drive in the second.

Redskins Drop 2 Players, Squad Now Totals 50

Los Angeles, Aug. 6.—Two Washington Redskins bit the dust today. Coach Herman Ball released Center Clay Davis, a 235-pounder from Oklahoma A. and M., and Guard Paul Mortellaro, who graduated from Florida in 1947 and since had tried out with Detroit Lions and the extinct Los Angeles Dons.

The Redskins, who open against the Los Angeles Rams August 16, now have 45 players in camp and 5 working out with the College All Stars. Two more players will possibly be cut before the opener.

Yanks Blast Lemon; Byrne Hurls 3-Hitter

Cleveland, Aug. 6 (AP).—Pitcher Tommy Byrne gave up only three singles today as he shutout Cleveland, 9-0, for the New York Yankees. Billy Martin hit a homer with two on base and Phil Rizzuto drove in four other runs with a double and a triple.

The win snapped a string on nine straight wins for the Tribe's 17-game winner Bob Lemon and pushed the Yanks back into second place in the American League, a half game ahead of Cleveland.

Byrne had a no-hitter until the seventh when Bob Kennedy singled Larry Doby and Bob Avila got the other Indian hits in the eighth and ninth.

Martin's homer was in the fifth after Joe DiMaggio had singled and Bobby Brown had forced Yogi Berra. Berra had walked.

Rizzuto's double in the third scored Brown, who had singled, and Martin, who had walked. Cliff Mapes then singled in Gene Woodling, who had also walked, and Rizzuto. That drove Lemon from the mound.

In the fourth, Rizzuto's triple drove in Byrne and Woodling. Byrne got to first on Joe Gordon's error and Woodling singled.

Byrne's rubber game victory was the second three-hit shutout for the Yanks in the series. Vic Raschi pitched the first in winning, 1-0, on Friday.

Sticking close to the pacesetters as the pros prepared for tomorrow's third round was Skee Riegel of Tulsa, Okla., the 1947 national amateur champion. He carved a pair of 35s for 70 and 143.

Grouped at par 144 were Sam Snead, Herman Keiser of Lima, Ohio; Fred Hawkins of El Paso, Tex., and Skip Alexander of Knoxville, Tenn.

Alexander fired 37-34 for a 71 today. Kciser, the 1946 Augusta Masters' champion, climbed to 36-38—74.

Snead shot 36-35—71. The husky Hawkins, sixteenth behind front-running Snead on the money winning list, banged 35-37—72 to match his first-round effort.

Capt. Thurman Barrier of the Headquarters Marines, Washington, won the grand aggregate championship of the sixth annual United States Park Police pistol tournament at Fort Totten Park yesterday with a 2588x2700 score.

Barrier, leading M/Sgt. Theodore Mitchell of the Quantico Marines by only 11 points after Saturday's matches, increased his aggregate by firing an 874x900 in the final four matches, which also gave him the .22-caliber title.

Mitchell scored an 859 in the .22s and fell to third place in the aggregate race, Major Roettinger of Quantico nosing him out, 2566 to 2562.

Barrier captured two matches as he added the .22-caliber and aggregate crowns to the .38-caliber title he won Saturday. He fired a perfect 200x200 to win the 20-shot, rapid-fire match from 25 yards, then followed with a 293x300 to take the national match course match.

The Metropolitan Police of Washington fired 1143 to finish second ahead of the Marine Corps School Rifle and Pistol Club and its 1131.

A raft of prizes were distributed to the many winners, Capt. Barrier requiring two assistants to carry off his merchandise and medals. William Couper of Washington won a "surprise prize," a .22 caliber rifle, for posting the lowest grand aggregate score of 1988x2700.

Charlie Plante, of Quantico, exhibits a couple of the odd-shaped .38 caliber officer model colt pistols he used to win two prizes in the three-day pistol matches which ended at Fort Totten Park yesterday. The grips are hand made and have a counter weight to the barrel to help Plante, who designed them, with his shooting score

Golden Flag Top Hunter At Bull Run

Manassas, Va., Aug. 6.—Alex Calvert's Golden Flag bested a good field of hunters and J. F. McCauley's Spin Boy took the performance honors is the open jumping division to annex the hunter and jumper championships at the fourth annual Bull Run Hunt Club horse show here today.

Golden Flag, a 4-year-old chestnut gelding by Chief Flag, a Flagpole son, and out of a Dan 4th mare; was shown for the first time by his owner and Winnie Brown both of Warrenton, Va., for a 9½-point champion score to win in the ladies' hunters, and second place in the open and hunter hack classes for the point tally. The green hunters was another triumph for the newcomer that Calvert purchased as a weanling some three years ago.

Reserve to Golden Flag was J. North Fletcher's Both Ways, Donald Snelling's, big chestnut gelding, Pretender from Fredericksburg, Va., tied with W. Haggin Perry's Folly for runner-up laurels, the reserve title and ribbon was awarded to Pretender after the ensuing jump-off.

Ambassador Team Sixth

High Point, N. C., Aug. 6 (AP).—Judy Cornell of Portland, Oreg., stroked her way to a National AAU record today in the closing program of the senior women's swimming championship.

Miss Cornell, representing the Multnomah Athletic Club of Portland, was timed at 1:23.1 for the 100-meter breaststroke. The old standard, 1:24.3, was established in 1943 by Jane Dillard, unattached, of Fort Worth, Tex.

The well balanced Hawaii Swim Club of Honolulu, paced by versatile Thelma Kalama, retained the team honors it won last year by scoring 41 points in the three-day championships. In second place was the Los Angeles Athletic Club, with 23.

The Ambassador Swimming Club of Washington, D. C., finished sixth in the team scoring with 14 points.

Jimmy Demaret Blows Up, Uses 5 Putts for 18-Foot Shot

Chicago, Aug. 6 (AP).— For all you guys who get mad when you 3-putt a green, think about poor Jimmy Demaret.

Demaret, one of the Nation's leading golfers, 5-putted from 18 feet in today's second round of the Tam O'Shanter tournament.

Demaret drove the 250-yard eighth hole. His first putt from 18 feet lipped the cup and rolled 2½ feet beyond. He took aim and scooted 1 foot past the hole on putt No. 2.

Then things began to happen—in this order:

No. 3—He quick jabbed the ball backhanded. It rolled around the edge of the cup and 3 feet away.

No. 4—He stroked the ball and it slid past another 3 feet.

No. 5—He turned his putter around, tapped it from the left-side and it went in.

Demaret finished with a 42, 41—83.

Leavens then returned to court with Adair to win 6—3, 6—1 and 6—4 over Alex Keiles and Kahl Spriggs in sets filled with net volleying.

All of the finalists are from Washington, D. C.

Here's how to solve the Puzzle

Follow these Instructions

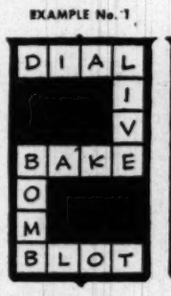
1. First solve the Picture Crossword. This is not an ordinary Crossword, for instead of definitions, we have reproduced illustrations of objects numbered for "ACROSS" and "DOWN". Identify the objects and fill in their names correctly spelled, in the proper spaces in the diagram, just as you would in a regular crossword puzzle. No. 1 "ACROSS," for example, is SPUR; No. 1 "DOWN" is SADDLE and No. 2 "DOWN" is ROLLER. These we have filled in for you.

2. Go on from there. Once your Puzzle Diagram is filled in you will find that 14 extra 4 letter words have been automatically formed. (Just as we formed DIAL and LONE by filling in SADDLE and ROLLER.) Now score yourself 50 points for each of the 34 objects identified and filled in and 10 points for each of the 14 words—a total of 1840 points if correctly completed.

3. Your next step is to take any one of the 14 extra words from the filled-in puzzle (these words must appear in the official word list) and fill it into the top letter path of the small 5-path diagram printed below the big diagram. That word becomes your KEY word. This word is important for your job now is to take four more words from the Official Word List (which gives you a choice of 54 words) and link up those words so as to fill in all the blank spaces in the 5-Path Diagram. No word may be used more than once and including the Key word you must use 5 different words. (See below.) With so many words to choose from this should be easy. But your goal is to use only those words which will give you the highest possible score when you add up the value of the 16 letters used. (See letter value chart.)

And that is where your key word is so important, for the letters in the words you fill into the 5-path diagram are worth DOUBLE the value indicated in the Official Letter Value Chart whenever they are letters that appear in your selected KEY word. For example, if you insert DIAL as your KEY word, D becomes worth 4 points instead of 2; I becomes 4; A becomes 6; L becomes 6. So whenever you use in the 5-path diagram a D; an I; an A or an L this doubled value is effective. All the other letters retain their chart value. To the score you thus reach you must then add the points you have already earned by filling in the crossword puzzle correctly. To show you how this actually works we give you two examples below.

EXAMPLE No. 1



EXAMPLE No. 2

In Example No. 1 we have used DIAL as the Key word. Linking up the words we selected and counting the letter D, the letter I, the letter A and the letter L double each time used, we reached a score of 78 for our extra 5 words. This we added to the 1840 points earned by correctly solving the picture crossword puzzle for a total score of 1918.

In Example No. 2 we used LONE as our Key word and counting the letter L double, O double, N double, E double each time used we boosted our score to 95 for our extra 5 words, raising our total score to 1935.

If you get the idea, try your hand now. Enter today—remember you can always send in a higher score later on free of extra charge. (See extra Award for Action at left.) Hurry! This may be your day to start on your way to riches.

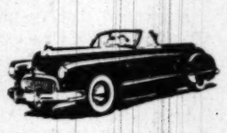
Extra Award For Prompt Action

You may also win a 1951 BUICK CONVERTIBLE if you act now!



Yes!—a new 1951 BUICK CONVERTIBLE may become yours as an EXTRA award if your original entry is postmarked before midnight, August 26, 1950. In that case your best score (original or substitute) will be judged in competition with those of all other contestants who entered before this deadline and who have not been awarded any other automobile as an extra prize. If yours is the highest score, you win the new 1951 BUICK convertible. (In the event of ties, of course, official contest rules will apply.) In addition, of course, you may win one of the big cash prizes. So make yourself eligible for the extra award today—send in your entry at once.

THE OFFICIAL CONTEST RULES—Please Read Carefully

1. Three Prize Groups totalling $100,000.00 will be awarded in accordance with the instructions, official prize list and these rules to the contestants who achieve the highest scores in solving the Official Contest Puzzle.

2. A contestant must send with his answer a minimum donation of $2.50 to enter Group 1; $5.00 for Group 2 and $10.00 for Group 3. You may compete in any one, two or all three prize groups and may transfer from one group or groups to another (or others) by submitting the required additional donation prior to the deadline date. See Rule 8.

3. Prize groups will be judged separately. The highest score submitted in Group 1 will win first prize in Group 1. Second highest score submitted in that group will win 2nd prize and so on until the 100 prizes in Group 1 have been awarded. Prizes in Groups 2 and 3 will be awarded similarly.

4. If ties result (which seems likely in view of the size of the contest) the number of prizes corresponding to the number of tied contestants will be set aside before prizes are awarded for lower scores. Those tied must then send in solutions to a series of 5 tie-breaking puzzles. Solutions to Puzzle No. 1 will be judged first. If this does not break all of the ties, the solutions to Puzzle No. 2 from remaining tied contestants will be judged, and so on, if necessary to Puzzle No. 5. Puzzles Nos. 2 through 5, therefore, may not have to be judged. A second, third or even a fourth series may be required. Tie-breaking puzzles will be similar to the original puzzle, although they will be larger and more difficult. No less than 14 nor more than 21 days from the date of mailing to tied contestants will be allowed for answering the first series of tie-breaking puzzles (if needed), and puzzles will be mailed by us so that the arrival date for each tied contestant should be the same. Not less than 3 nor more than 7 days will be allowed for the second, third and fourth series (if needed). No additional contributions will be required with tie-breaking puzzles. In the event of final ties, the full amount of the tied-for prize will be awarded each tied contestant.

5. The contest is open to any resident of the Continental United States except employees of AMVETS National Service Foundation, Inc. and its affiliated organizations, its advertising agency, its service organization, or anyone who has won $500.00 or more in cash or kind awarded in any other contest, or any member of such excluded persons' families. Only one member of a family may compete. All entries must bear a bonafide permanent home address in the Continental United States to which all contest mail will be sent. In view of the uncertain address of members of the Armed Forces on active duty, and the consequent delay in mail delivery, this contest is not open to them.

6. Solution must be submitted on an Official Entry Form. At no extra cost, one substitute solution can be submitted on the Official Numbered Substitute Solution Form which, together with acknowledgment of entry, will be sent to each contestant. Neatness does not count, but unsigned or illegible entries, or entries so unclear as to be confusing, will not be considered, and accompanying donations will be returned upon request after judging is completed. Make no error in your addition of points claimed for it will make that claim invalid. Where more than one entry is submitted by an individual his or her highest valid score will be considered only in that group or groups in which that score is entered. That score will serve to compete in any one, two or all three prize groups, depending on the amount donated with that particular entry. An individual may win only one prize in each prize group.

7. The final authority on spelling, names and definitions of the objects will be the Merriam-Webster New International Dictionary, Unabridged, Second Edition (1950 printing).

8. All entries must be sent by mail to:
Amvets Foundation $100,000 Contest
Washington 1, D. C.
and must be postmarked before midnight, October 30, 1950, and received before 5 P. M., Nov. 15, 1950. An extra 75 days from these dates is allowed for the mailing and receipt of substitute solutions and additional donations. The Foundation will not be responsible for mail lost or delayed or for clerical or mechanical errors. The decision of the Foundation and/or its Board of Judges on any and all matters, under the rules and instructions, affecting the contest is final.

9. Any contestant who accepts help of any kind from any one (same family or household excepted), or does not comply with rule 5 will be disqualified. (We reserve the right to reject any entry for any reason prior to commencement of judging and to refund all money received with such entry.) Sworn statements to this effect will be required from all winners and every reasonable effort will be made to enforce this rule.

Civil Service Studying Problems of Transfer Between Federal Units

A transfer system to meet two growing problems in Government will be issued soon by the Civil Service Commission. The problems are:

1. To prevent the free transfer of employes from one agency to another.

2. To transfer employes slated to be fired from nondefense agencies, to the war agencies.

The commission has directed its staff to recommend plans on how they can be accomplished.

The Veterans' Administration and several other agencies are reported to have informed the commission that they are losing too many of their employes by transfers to other agencies. The VA problem is confined mainly to low-paid hospital workers on the West Coast. These employes are going to better-paying war jobs.

But commission officials are well aware that the manpower problem will get much worse in the months to come and they're making plans accordingly. A revival of the war transfer system is being seriously considered. Under it, no employe could be transferred from certain war and war-connected agencies unless he's given prior approval of both the commission and his agency.

In the opposite direction is the plan to find other Government jobs for employes in nondefense agencies who are threatened with the loss of their jobs under the House and Senate riders to the 1951 general budget bill.

The commission staff wants to give these persons absolute preference to fill vacancies and new jobs in Government. It's looking to the Army, Navy, and Air Force to absorb them.

From 25,000 to 50,000 employes would have to be laid off from the nondefense agencies under the Senate-approved Byrd-Bridges rider. The rider approved by the House would cut far deeper in both personnel and dollars of the nondefense agencies.

Up to this point, the military agencies are hiring mainly to rebuild Navy yards, Army arsenals, airfields, supply depots, and they seek clerks, stenographers, and typists. They would have little need for specialists in other Federal agencies that may be laid off.

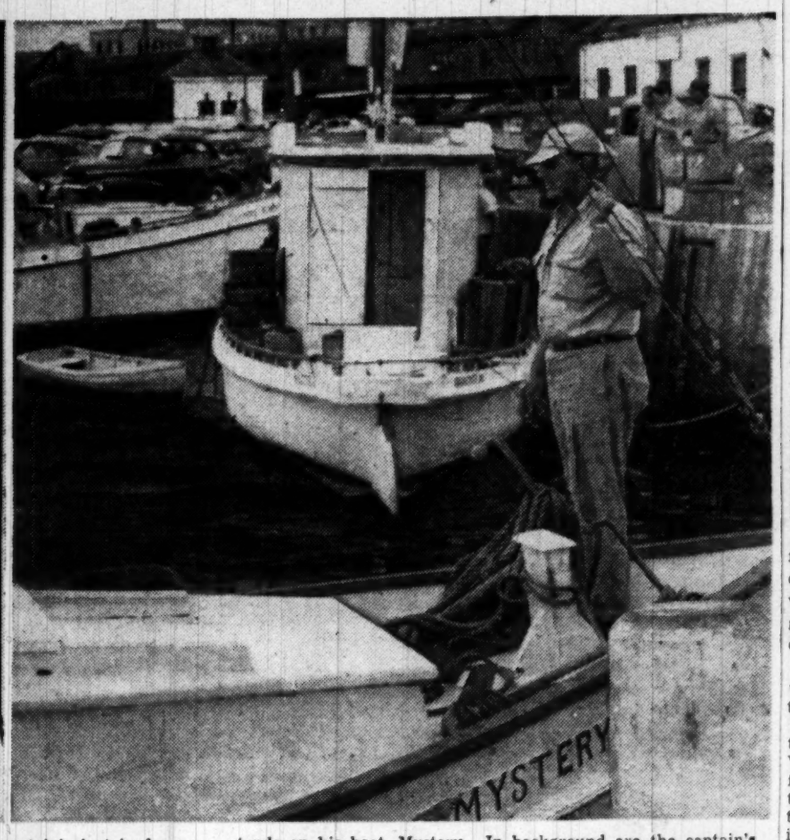
LOYALTY: A total of 230 Federal workers have been fired on loyalty grounds by Civil Service's Loyalty Review Board since the program began in March, 1947. Employes who won their appeals to the board number 13, and 76 cases are in the process of being decided.

INTERNS: Twenty-eight young men and women have been selected to participate in the second junior management intern program to start next month. They are: Perley D. Tileston, Agriculture; Opal L. Dargon, Anthony J. Ferri, Edith L. Midgette, and Mary E. Sheil, Army; Farris D. Eddinger, Civil Service; John W. Brentlinger, Duryee Van Wagenen, Carl L. Frey, Norma E. Perry and Bruce B. Spratling, Commerce; Stanley D. Allen, James D. Burris, Robert P Bynum, Harold J. Datta, Marjorie T. Helen, L. Peterson, and James H. Rice, Federal Security; Stanley E. Boyer, Lowry N. Coe, Alan Y. Phinney, and Marvin S. Ross, Navy; James B. Coman and Paul H. Friedman, Panama Canal; Blanch H. Hicks and Arthur E. Pardee, State, and Alexander Harrison and Glenn M. Smith, VA.

JOB NEWS: Civil Service has ordered the firing of nonstatus geophysicists, who have served less than two years and who are paid from $3100 to $6400, by September 30 . . . Civil Service will announce an exam soon for architects, $3825 to $5400 . . . Persons here and nearby who passed the recent general clerical exam are being certified by Civil Service for jobs in war agencies. Those with grades in the 80s are now being given jobs.

Captain A. J. and His Crew In From the Eastern Shore

DON'T BE AFRAID—Captain A. J. (formally, A. J. Hundley of Onancock, Va.), tries to reassure a somewhat doubtful Peggy Lou Green, 4, of 5401 Hamilton st., Rogers Heights, Md., that the mean ole crab won't hurt her. The captain's just in from the Eastern Shore with another cargo of crabs and fish for Washington's tables. At right, Bill Crosley, the captain's son-in-law, stands on his boat, Mystery. In background are the captain's Mattie J. and the Sue Constance, run by Clyde Parker, another son-in-law. The trio literally has a corner on the market



YOUNG HELPER—Johnny Apperson, 13, of 706 7th st. sw., joins the crew of the Mattie J. every summer. Here he displays a healthy specimen he himself has caught

Cap'n Hundley and Kin Dock With Fine Haul of Tired Crabs

"Lady, these crabs aren't dead. They're just tired."

Captain A. J. should know. He's been keeping customers happy on Municipal Wharf for two decades.

In the summer he makes the 16-hour trip from Onancock, Va., every weekend, hauling crabs, croakers, spots, trout and shad from the Eastern Shore. It's oysters in the winter.

Yesterday the bronzed, broad-shouldered Cap'n—his full name is A. J. Hundley—had the family out, except for Mrs. Hundley and their two daughters. "They look after strawberries and things like that," he smiled, somewhat disdainfully.

There was his son, Aden, 20, who works with him on the Mattie J. Then on a boat alongside was a son-in-law, Clyde Parker, 37, who is running the Sue Constance for himself for the first time this summer. On a third ship was Bill Crosley, 24, who has been working with A. J. since he married Ada Mae two years ago.

Corner on Crab Market

The triumvirate had a corner on the weekend crab business at the wharf. Three other "bug-eyes", or power-sailboats, were busy, too, selling the jumbo blue crabs for which the Eastern Shore is famous.

Probably the most enthusiastic—and youngest—crustacean salesman on the Mattie J was 13-year-old Johnny Apperson, 706 7th st. sw. Every summer, Johnny, who "loves to fish" and "never gets seasick" joins the crew.

The bustling crabs, groping their way out of the crammed bushels, hold no scare for him. "If they grab hold of my finger and won't let loose, I use a screwdriver to pry them open."

Each weekend Johnny helps keep the fish iced, sorts the small from the jumbo crabs. By Monday the crew usually sells 100 bushels or about 7000 wriggling crustaceans.

Delayed Sometimes

But the crabbing industry is not merely landside selling. Captain A. J. remembers the time—and it happened more than once—when he was late three or four days on the 135-mile run because the 48-footer got "windbound."

"All we could do was put our anchor out and wait it out."

Such incidents, though, are part of the game. His father experienced them, too. "He rocked me in this cradle and I guess I've put my boy in it, too. It's what he wants to do."

The dungaree-clad sons-in-law are no strangers to the water, either. Parker has been bringing crabs in for 12 years, 10 working for Hundley and 2 as his partner. Crosley was on the Cape Charles ferry until two years ago.

All of them enjoy crabs, except Crosley. He never touches crabs or oysters, except to sell a quarter of a million or so each year.

Yeggs Steal Two Safes, Crack Third, Get $3550

Funds in Checks And Cash; Thefts Reported in Two Different Sections

Yeggs carted off two safes—one equipped with a tear-gas bomb—from a Northeast building early yesterday, and a third safe was burned open in the Southeast without its tear-gas charge being released.

One of the two safes trundled from offices at 3120 24th pl. ne., early yesterday, was equipped with a tear gas cartridge, set to go off when anyone tried to rip or punch the safe open.

Police alerted local hospitals to report anyone applying for treatment of tear gas burns.

The third safe was cut open at the J. E. Hurley Machine & Boiler Works, 1015 Half st. se. Police found its tear gas charge untouched. Police said yeggs entered the boiler works by punching out a workshop window.

Then, investigators found, the intruders had picked up the management's acetylene torch, with tanks attached, borrowed the management's gloves to work with, and cut the door off the 3000-pound safe.

Office Manager A. J. Chapdelaine said they got about $150 in cash from the safe, ignoring a number of checks. He said Francis N. Cornwell, a welder for the company, found the tanks in the office building hallway and smelled smoke from the acetylene cutting job when he returned some tools at 5:30 p. m. yesterday.

Chapdelaine said the same safe was tackled eight years ago by yeggs unable to break into it. Subsequently, he said, the tear gas device was attached.

At the 24th pl. building, a 700-pound safe (the one containing the tear gas gadget) was taken from the office of Elliott Delivery Services. In the safe were $200 in cash, checks totaling between $2000 and $3000, and five savings bonds.

At the same address, the yeggs removed a 300-pound safe from the office of Elliott Motor Lines. It contained $200 in cash.

Arlington To Get New Special School

A new school for children with special learning problems will be established by the Arlington public school system this fall, officials have announced.

The school is expected to enroll about 60 children of various ages with mental or emotional difficulties which prevent them from fitting into regular public school classes.

Miss Florence Maitland, formerly a teacher in the District public schools for a number of years, has been named principal.

Miss Maitland, who has taught in similar special classes in the District, lives at 2220 N. Albemarle st., Arlington.

She will have a staff of three teachers, including Joseph B. Cunningham, wartime gunner and bombardier, graduate of the University of Virginia and a teacher in the Prince Georges County schools last year. He will teach manual arts, while two others to be appointed will teach household arts and kindergarten.

Location of the new school has not been decided.

VFW Auxiliary to Get Treasury Award Today

The Treasury Department's "Award of Merit" will be presented today to the VFW Auxiliary of the District for its cooperation with the recent Savings Bonds Independence Drive.

The award will be made at a meeting in the Masonic Temple, 8th and F sts. ne., at 9:30 p. m.

Pfc. Murphy

D. C. Youth Is Wounded In Korea

Pfc. Donald J. R. Murphy, 19, son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter S. Murphy, 906 Butternut st. nw., has been wounded in action in Korea, the Department of Defense announced yesterday.

Pfc. Murphy

In the Army since January, 1949, Private Murphy was sent to Japan about 15 months ago. He had attended Coolidge High School and had worked for a plumbing outfit before entering the service.

Private Murphy's parents were out of town when the telegram came last week, notifying them of their son's injuries. A brother, Robert Murphy, who was in the Marine Corps in World War II, and who lives at 921 Butternut st. nw., said he received a letter from Donald the next day, saying he had been wounded in the foot and back and was suffering a bad case of 'nerves." The letter was written in an evacuation hospital in Korea, Robert said.

Mt. Vernon Church Board Regrets Pastor's Leaving

In a letter to the congregation of Mount Vernon Place Methodist Church, Judge Benjamin Littleton, chairman of the church board, expressed regret at the Rev. Dr. John W. Rustin's resignation as pastor, effective September 24.

"In answering the call to Belmont Church (Nashville, Tenn.) we know Dr. Rustin feels the challenge to service not only to the pastorate there, but to the whole of Methodism in that, our headquarters city."

A successor to Dr. Rustin has not yet been selected, the letter stated.

Ad Men Meet Tuesday

Churches Hold A-Bomb Day Peace Prayers

Prayers for peace were offered in many Washington churches yesterday on the fifth anniversary of the dropping of the first atomic bomb at Hiroshima, August 6, 1945.

Protestant churches responded to an appeal from a committee of prominent Washington churchmen. At the First Baptist Church, the Rev. R. Edward Dowdy, associate minister, at the communion service, reminded the congregation "that now as never before we need to understand the word of God."

The Rev. Dr. O. G. Robinson, pastor of Calvary Methodist Church, made special suggestions for meditations after communion including, (1) that the United Nations may be given the necessary strength for their superhuman task, and (2) that the President of the United States and those responsible for the Nation may be enlightened.

St. Alban's Episcopal Church, Wesley Methodist, Marvin Memorial Methodist, University Park Church of the Brethren, First Evangelical and Reform, were among the many churches which observed the "peace day."

From the pulpits of all Roman Catholic Churches in the Washington area, clergy read a pastoral letter from the Most Rev. Patrick A. O'Boyle, Archbishop of the Diocese of Washington, requesting a special novena of prayer and good works beginning today and ending on the Feast of Our Lady's Assumption, August 15.

"Under the dread clouds of war, that again darken the skies" the letter read, "men speak of new and fearful weapons of destruction and death. The Holy Father in his heartrending plea for peace begs us to return with heroic dedication to penance and to prayer."

Boy, 7, Loses Finger In Accident at Home

Milton Cureton, 7, of the Industrial Home School Annex, 5200 Loughboro rd. nw., lost a finger yesterday as a result of injuries while helping a companion to move a portable hydraulic jack at the Home.

The boy's left hand was crushed between the jack and a flagpole. The Bethesda-Chevy Chase Rescue Squad took him to Gallinger Hospital where the third finger was amputated.

500 'Drink Toasts' to Sobriety As AA Opens New Quarters

Drinks flowed by the dozens yesterday in the old church building as 500 persons joined in a rousing housewarming at 1410 Columbia rd. nw.

But nobody got drunk; nobody even got giddy. How come?

Simple. The drinks were soft. Because this was a program celebrating the opening of a new Washington area headquarters for Alcoholics Anonymous, the voluntary group of men and women whose sole rallying point is a common desire to quit drinking.

Meeting in what was once a church auditorium and later a dance studio, the group listened as one sincere AA after another testified to the power of his own cure. In the audience were wives, mothers, children and husbands of those who journeyed the hard road back to sobriety.

One man declared earnestly, "Alcoholics are sick people—not criminals" and cited the case of one man who was "dried out 148 times in the District Jail" but only after joining AA did he stay permanently "dry."

The "saved' have a handsome sense of humor about the "old days." One speaker, reading from a clipping, began slipping all over the words. He looked up for a moment and noted:

"I know darn well I'm sober, but the light is poor."

The audience roared with laughter.

A woman said the post-AA period is a "second life. We are born again."

Other speakers traced the growth of the organization from a small meeting of five men in December, 1939, to the present 12 groups, numbering 3000 in the Washington area. The present structure has a well-furnished lounge, coffee and coke bar and an assembly hall.

AA meetings are open to "anyone interested in staying sober." It "costs nothing and has nothing to sell," the sponsors emphasize.

U. S. Aides to Get 20 Pct. Cut For 3 Sesqui Shows This Week

Federal workers will receive a 20 percent discount on all reserved seats for Paul Green's symphonic drama, "Faith of Our Fathers" at its performances Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday nights.

Vouchers entitling the holder to such a reduction have been distributed to all Federal agencies, the National Capital Sesquicentennial Commission announced.

They must be redeemed at either the Rock Creek Park Amphitheater box office on Colorado ave. just off 16th st. nw., or at the special trailer booth in front of the District Building in Post Square.

Vouchers will not be honored at other ticket-sale locations and do not apply to the 90-cent general admission seats, the commission said.

At the Tuesday and Wednesday night performances, the States of Virginia and Maryland also will be honored.

Tuesday night, Virginia Gov. John S. Battle will be the guest of honor. In special ceremonies preceding the drama, he will be presented with a hand-illuminated scroll. The Jefferson High School choir from Roanoke will sing.

On Wednesday night, Maryland Gov. W. Preston Lane and members of the Maryland State Society will participate in similar ceremonies at the amphitheater.

These States thus will become the twenty-second and twenty-third States to be so honored during the Sesquicentennial celebration, of which the Paul Green drama is a part.

Man Loses Eye, 2d Stabbed in Street Fights

One man lost his left eye and another was stabbed as a result of street fights in the District late Saturday night.

Loser of the eye was Chester Walker, 32, of 1004 N st. nw. Police said Walker and several other persons became embroiled in an argument in front of Walker's house shortly before midnight.

Walker was struck in the eye with a brick. The eye was removed at Emergency Hospital and his condition is now reported good.

Police arrested a nextdoor neighbor, Forest Wesley, 40, of 1006 N st. nw., and charged him with three counts of assault with a dangerous weapon.

They said Wesley also assaulted Charles Iles and Julia Gimp, both of the 1004 N st. address, although neither required hospital treatment.

The stabbing victim was Comanche Howard, 55, of no fixed address. He was stabbed in the abdomen with a sharp instrument, perhaps a razor, during a fight in the 1700 block of Glicks alley nw. He is in serious condition at Freedmen's Hospital.

Police arrested Willie Reynolds, 55, who gave his address as 754 Girard st. nw., as Howard's assailant and charged him with assault with a dangerous weapon.

Police said Howard told them the fight started when Reynolds grabbed a bottle of wine from him. Reynolds said it started when Howard seized $5 from him.

Reynolds and Wesley, the alleged brick wielder, will be arraigned in Municipal Court today.

Boston Is Biggest State Capital, 1950 Census Shows

By The Associated Press

Boston has the biggest population of any of the 48 State capitals; Carson City, Nev., the smallest.

The Census Bureau ranked them that way in a special report yesterday on preliminary figures for State capitals gathered in the 1950 census.

The Massachusetts capital's population was 788,552—just 3682 below the population of the Nation's capital. Boston was ahead of Washington ten years ago.

Carson City was listed at 3069.

Right behind Boston as top-size state capitals came, in order, Indianapolis, Denver, Columbus, and Atlanta.

Skating Rink To Open Near Development

Work will start in two weeks on an outdoor skating rink at Wisconsin ave. and Newark st. nw., adjoining McLean Gardens. The structure will be operated by the management of the Ice Palace, which has been leased as a television studio.

Irving D. Berger, secretary of the Chevy Chase Shop and Stores, Inc., said the rink will be open starting about October 1 and will continue each year from October to March.

The site is owned by the Kass Realty Co., which is planning a shopping center facing on Wisconsin ave. with the rink at the rear. Berger said the rink space will be larger than the Ice Palace and will eventually be joined by a sports store, skating rental spot and soda fountain.

The Washington Figure Skating Club, whose 600 members made the Ice Palace their headquarters, is expected to shift its activities to the new rink.

The Ice Palace freezing equipment and other facilities will be moved into the new location, Berger said.

Weatherman's Quite Happy Over Weather!

The weatherman gazed into his various instruments yesterday and murmured the magic words, "continued fair."

Then he sat back and said, "I could take a couple of months of this." By which he meant yesterday's high, 81 at 3 p. m. and humidity a measly 35 percent. More of the same is slated today.

"Had a close call, though," the weatherman added. "We were surrounded by storm clouds, but none of 'em got through."

"We're pretty lucky right now", he continued. "Usually we get over the hot-weather hump by August 10, but we're running a little ahead of schedule."

Brisk breezes and plenty of clouds kept folks out of the parks, but attendance at the Washington Monument was estimated at 3500—same as almost every day.

Mother of 7 Killed in Fall Down Stairs

Mrs. Madeline King, 36, mother of seven children, was fatally injured early yesterday when she fell down a flight of stairs in the home of her parents at 632 Jefferson st. nw.

Mrs. King, police said, had been living with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William C. Cambrey, since her estrangement from her husband, Joseph King.

Police were told that Mrs. King returned to the house at about 2:30 a. m., after spending the evening with friends in Takoma Park, Md.

Her mother was awakened by a loud noise and ran downstairs and found her daughter crumpled at the bottom of the stairs leading to the recreation room.

Mrs. King was pronounced dead at the scene at 4 a. m. by a Health Department ambulance doctor.

Deputy Coroner Christopher J. Murphy, who announced he would withhold a death certificate pending further investigation by police, said death resulted from a fractured skull.

In addition to her parents, Mrs. King is survived by seven children, ranging in age from one to 18 years, Patricia Ann, Mary Diane, Adelaide, William, Dawn, Marie and Carol, and a brother, William G. Cambrey.

FIRST THERE were three. Then there were two. Capt. Robert S. Rivers, USAF, and Capt. James K. Sullivan, USA, are about to lose a roommate—Maj. Hugh Forrest Richardson, USA, whose marriage to Miss Beverly Farrington will take place August 12.

Yesterday, the major and his fiancee were honored at a cocktail party given by the two captains. All three men, who are White House aides, have cast their bachelor lot together for the past year or so at a house in Georgetown. Mrs. Taft Convalescing

LOOKS like Senator Taft will have to campaign without his favorite stumper—his wife Martha. In previous campaigns Mrs. Taft has been her husband's biggest vote-getter, touring the length and breadth of the State. One day this spring she was rushed to a Washington hospital from a supper party at Representative Frances Bolton's home. Convalescence is slow and Mrs. Taft is only just now able to get around with the aid of a cane.

A friend who does volunteer telephone work has telephoned to ask us if we could find some way to let it be known that the veterans hospitals are in need of magazines, books and jigsaw puzzles. Light fiction is the most popular reading.

Which reminds us of a story told of a philanthropic minded lady who lived in Washington in the days of World War I. She was asked if she would contribute some reading matter for the Seamen's Library. Shortly after a large packing box arrived at headquarters. The contents: about 22 years collection of Washington Social Registers and half a dozen books on female diseases.

Draperies Hold the Clue To Harmony in Decoration

By Lucia Brown

HIDDEN away in the folds of fine drapery fabric is a color key that will help you decorate your home.

Notice how the shades in a lovely modern print blend and contrast? They were placed there by an expert, not by accident! And you can put your faith in them.

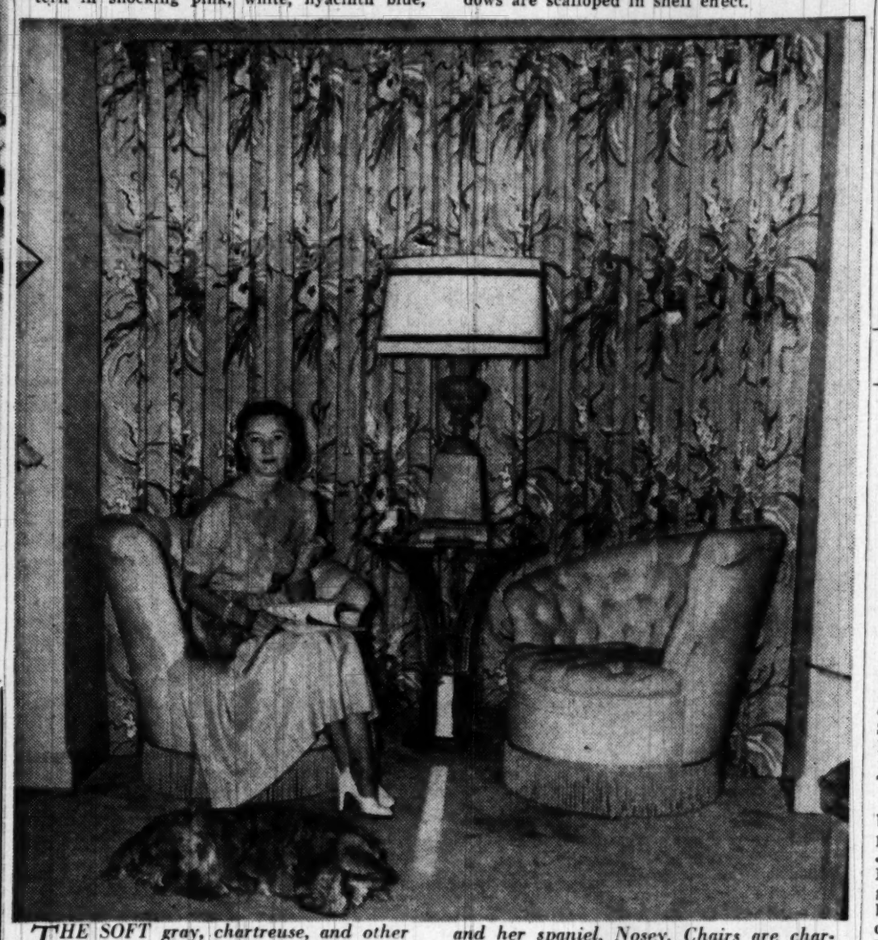
Beautiful proof of this is the decor in the home of Mr. and Mrs. O. C. Barkley, 3715 Fessenden st. nw. Draperies in the "Paris Bouquet" pattern were used in the living room, the "California Shell" pattern in the dining room. At the suggestion of decorator Jeff Davis, Mrs. Barkley chose carpets, upholstery, and accessories that exactly match the fabric shades. These colors have been skillfully balanced throughout the rooms.

Let's step into the long living room first. The "Paris Bouquet" draperies have a gray background against which shines a floral pattern in shocking pink, white, hyacinth blue, and deep green.

Lots of color? That's true. There's certainly no drabness here. But the room is a restful one. Soft gray is used as a background throughout—for the walls, the carpeting, the long couch. Seen against it in lovely contrast are a shocking pink Regency bench, fireplace chairs in hyacinth blue, two chartreuse "conversation chairs," another chair in deep green. Green and silver lamps, shocking pink soft cushions, and unusual accessories repeat the clear, gay colors.

The dining room carries out the shell pink, Celadon green, coral and white of the "California Shell" pattern. Walls and carpeting are Celadon green, a soft grayed shade. Custom-built china cabinets are shell pink inside, white outside. The table designed by Mr. Davis is of heavy glass, supported by two white pillars. The shell design in the draperies is repeated in the pulls on the sideboard and the mirror over it. Pink wrought iron chairs have shell backs, and the inverted valances over the windows are scalloped in shell effect.

THE SHELL motif in the dining room, as well as the colors, was inspired by the "California Shell" pattern of the draperies. Walls are Celadon green, cabinets white outside and pink inside, the tables of heavy plate glass supported by white pillars



THE SOFT gray, chartreuse, and other colors in the draperies provided the decorating key for the O. C. Barkley living room. Here they form a charming background for pretty, dark-haired Mrs. Barkley and her spaniel, Nosey. Chairs are chartreuse, the lamp hyacinth blue with white, chartreuse, and shocking pink lamp. Walls and carpeting are gray, the background color of the fabric

By J. Armstrong—The Washington Post

SHOCKING pink—the color of flowers in the "Paris Bouquet" drapery pattern—is the shade used in upholstering the Regency bench on which Mrs. Barkley is seated. The modern breakfront behind the bench is black lacquer, its glass doors covered inside with Chinese tea paper in silver

Paint Manufacturers Have a Fine Time Naming Hues, But the Eye Is Still Best Judge in Blending

DEAR ANNE:

I would appreciate your opinion on the proper color for the living room and dining room walls in a new house where they can be seen from each other. The kitchen is also arranged so that it can be partially seen when the doors are open.

I would like to be sure that everything blends nicely since so many recently built houses I have seen have had such shocking differences in color when going from one room to the next that it gives no feeling of unity.

My living room furniture has beige tapestry upholstery with flowers of light and deep rose, intermingled with a little green and blue. My draperies are a rayon cord with the same coloring, except a lot more green, both light and dark moss green. My scatter rugs are deep red. I plan to have the woodwork either white or cream. The furniture is mahogany. Would a "vert green" be too dark for the walls, to add size to the living room which is 13 by 20 feet? Would it blend well with the yellow congo tile and dark green flooring of the kitchen? I plan to have both dining room and living room with connecting hall the same color to add size and unity.

E. H. K., Fredericksburg, Va.

Since manufacturers let their imaginations run riot when they're naming paints, I'm not sure exactly what shade "vert" green is. I've consulted a number of decorating books and paint charts and haven't run across it. However, I'm assuming from what you say that it's a dark green.

This would seem to be nicely in accord with your other colors. You will find the room needs some contrast and lightening, though, with the dark walls and neutral upholstery and draperies. Are there bookcases that could be painted white or cream? Could you introduce white lamps or accessories? It seems to me a little more of the rose wouldn't be amiss either, to brighten the place. A small chair upholstered or slip covered in rose, or rose, white and green stripe, could be used. Rose sofa cushions or a lamp are also a possibility. Maybe you already have them.

In the dining room, too, you'll want some light things to keep this main living section of your house from being too dark. As far as the kitchen goes, it seems to me it will be very attractive with its yellow walls in contrast with the green ones as you look through the house.

DEAR ANNE:

For the first time, I notice white spots of mold or mildew in my portable typewriter case. I usually store my machine in the linen closet of my apartment. It is on the first floor but above street level since we are atop a terrace. Can this be removed and its recurrence prevented? Stumped, Washington.

Have you seen the product (on sale in houseware's departments) for removing mildew and guarding against its return? It's a clear liquid which would provide an easy means of treating the typewriter case. Before using it, I'd take the case outdoors and thoroughly brush out as many of the mold spores as possible. No use leaving them around the house to spread to linens or other fabrics!

Is there a light in your linen closet? If you'll leave it on these humid days, you'll help to keep the closet dry and its contents from mildewing.

Medical School 'Quotas' Hit by Jewish Group

New York, Aug. 6 (AP).—The "quota system" has cut enrollment of Jewish students in American medical schools 50 percent in the past 20 years, the American Jewish Congress said today.

The congress based its assertion on a study by its Commission on Law and Social Action.

A survey of 57 medical schools throughout the country revealed a substantial decrease of Jewish students despite a general increase of enrollments, the congress said.

How to Get a Husband

Courtship Is Vital Prelude to Mating

By Cora Carlyle

LONG ago when a man wanted a girl, he pursued her literally over hill and dale. The chase was conducted in the most obvious way. Today civilized living confines the courtship period to more limited physical space, but wooing and being wooed is as necessary a prelude to mating as it ever was. It may take place in a living room while listening to the radio. It can be carried on in the movies by holding hands. It can be encouraged in a good-night kiss that is sufficiently tantalizing. Over the dining table, on the bus, in the zoo, in fact wherever two people are excited over each other's presence is the setting for courtship. It takes a thousand and one different forms and shapes.

Throughout Nature, one observes the ever present phenomenon that mating is always preceded by a period of courtship. Whether birds or beasts, fish or fowl; elaborate wooing inevitably occurs between the male and female of the species.

The female crab insists that the boy friend brandish his brilliantly colored claw before she becomes his — and his only. The male butterfly has elaborate scent scales which give off a pleasant smell to charm the female. The peacock becomes irresistible to the pea-hen when he spreads his beautiful train. So it goes throughout all of Nature's domain—that the female demands that she be won; that she be courted. And for us humans, as with the birds and beasts, courtship is a necessary prelude to mating.

Let us look into the nature of courtship and let us consider how you can best use it to arrive at the ultimate goal—marriage.

First we want to point out that wooing not only possesses its own beauty but is a stage that should never be neglected because long before the consummation of marriage there should be a psychic and spiritual communion between a man and a maid. Many a modern miss finds herself off the right track because she has failed to realize the truth and necessity of a proper period of courtship. Any man is apt to place a higher value on the girl who holds herself worthy of courtship. A prize lightly won is never held highly.

Courtship Bill of Rights

START by remembering you are a human being upon whom Nature has conferred a bill of rights entitling you to courtship. It's important to understand that only in the lowest forms of plant and animal life where sex is just a reflex action is the period of courtship eliminated. Even the lowly sandworm demands love-making. To awaken desire, to nourish and cultivate it and then direct it is every girl's duty. Many a possible romance has been nipped in its infancy because the girls responded with too passive an air or too hasty an acceptance. Remember too, that the courting time is a lot of fun . . . that it is at this step of your relationship that the proper emotional bond between you and your future husband is established.

It is during this interval that the man must learn you are "different". It is here that he learns you are a "real" sport. This is the time he grows to admire you as a person; when he realizes that he can enjoy serious conversation with you; when he discovers the joys of your companionship. In short, this is the inexpressively sweet period when a man and a girl get to know each other. . . . It is the awakening of the new consciousness that you are in love with each other.

The young man gets used to being with you during the courtship period. Associations, like many other things in life, are rooted in habit and while it may not sound romantic, nevertheless, it is important that a man get dependent on a girl's presence for his peace of mind. While much has been said about man's need for novelty, the opposite is also true i. e. that men are creatures of habit—even about women. Real intimacy is oftimes the result of shopping together, visiting together. Then like the snowball rolling down the hill, momentum is gathered. You know how deserted you feel if your girl friend doesn't go to the movies with you or accompany you shopping or share a room on vacation. Well, part of the courtship period is to make your boy friend feel such desolation when you're not alongside of him even if he's just reading the comic sheet.

Use Psychology

OF COURSE, you may say, "I'm perfectly willing to be courted but how about the man?" What am I supposed to do when he tries to shortcut? Now, we are willing to concede that almost any man is apt to make amorous advances and here is where a little knowledge of simple psychology will stand you in good stead. Recognizing that you neither want to discourage his advances nor give in, you must avoid the physical set-up where premature love-making is most likely to occur.

When Mr. Man-About-Town invites you to his apartment to see his paintings, suggest that you'd love to look at the stars from the top of a bus. If you are the girl who lives alone and Mr. Brash Smith wants to come in for just a night-cap tell him sweetly but firmly that you have to get up at 7 in the morning.

Should Mr. Wolf extend an invitation for dinner in his apartment, thank him and tell him frankly that you prefer dining in a restaurant. Naturally, you don't have to verbalize to any man that you're avoiding being alone in an apartment with him. Your wordless conniving will unmistakably convey to him that you like him but that you are tactfully avoiding situations which might become embarrassing. A humorous, light attitude can actually do a lot to avoid any kind of disagreeable scene.

Remember, too, there is another factor working on your side . . . the fundamental fact that a man, in his heart of hearts will get great satisfaction out of the pursuit itself. In every man is the atavistic urge to pursue and woo his fair lady. In this highly mechanized world of ours we tend to forget that man, even the most modern or commonplace, is romantic. To him there is magic charm in the approach to the coveted female. Every man longs to be the Prince, who by his kiss, stirs his chosen mate.

The prelude before sex is an important period in your life. You can't skip it so be true to yourself and your birthright. It's up to you to establish the entire tone of this period. The girls who insist on being wooed get the best men, whether as friends, husbands or lovers.

TV Net Soon to Take Nine More States

By Wayne Oliver

NEW YORK, (AP).—Network television will spread out in the next two months to nine more States and 13 new cities.

The Bell System's 9500 channel miles of coaxial cable and radio relay facilities for television, serving 28 cities, will be expanded to 15,000 channel miles serving 41 cities by October 1.

The American Telephone and Telegraph Co.'s Bell System video hookup will receive an important addition September 1 with the opening of a microwave radio relay system between New York and Chicago. It will take over part of the television traffic between the two cities now traveling through underground coaxial cable. And it will become part of the backbone connection between the Atlantic and Pacific coasts due for completion late next year or early in 1952.

South and West

ON SEPTEMBER 30, the big push occurs. One extension will take the network southward from Richmond through Greensboro and Charlotte, N. C., to Jacksonville, Fla., to Atlanta and Birmingham. Another will push west from Chicago all the way to Omaha and Kansas City. And on the same day, a leg of the network will be extended from Dayton, Ohio, to Indianapolis and Louisville.

About mid-September, a microwave radio relay link will be opened between Los Angeles and San Francisco. However, it will remain separated from the East Coast, Midwest network until the transcontinental connection is completed, perhaps a year and a half hence.

The southern extension to Jacksonville and Birmingham will be entirely by underground coaxial cable.

The westward extension will be by the microwave radio relay towers, spaced about 25 miles apart, from Chicago to Rock Island, Ill., Davenport, Des Moines, and Ames, Iowa and Omaha, Nebr. From Des Moines which has no station, a coaxial link will extend northward to serve Minneapolis and St. Paul, and a similar link southward from Omaha will serve Kansas City.

The new link from Dayton to Indianapolis and Louisville will add not only those two cities but also—by private connections being planned—Nashville, Tenn., and Huntington, W. Va. Counting in five other cities, now receiving network programs by means of private relay facilities, the grand total will increase to 48 cities.

Costly Business

THESE television network facilities are expensive. By the end of the year, the value of coaxial cable and radio relay systems and other equipment used by the Bell System for television will be nearly 70 million dollars. The charges for use of these facilities also are relatively high, running about seven times as much as for radio network lines.

However, Bell says studies indicate network charges amount to less than 5 percent of the total cost of a typical television dramatic program, and average about 10 cents a mile for a half-hour program.

The telephone company's main customers for the video network channel are the network broadcasting companies—ABC, CBS, and Dumont. And how fast these companies want to extend their network programs to new cities is basically a matter of economics. However, future extensions also depend in great measure on how soon the Federal Communications Commission resumes the licensing of new stations—halted since October 1, 1948—as well as the extent of the preparedness program.

THE telephone company's plan, in general, is to gear construction of television channels to the growth of the industry on a long range basis. It has to plan far in advance of the time it actually receives orders for channels from the network companies. And the telephone company's plans are not made for television alone—but also take into account requirements for telephone and other communications services.

The DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

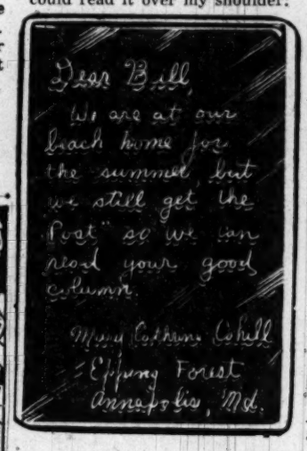
Probably Inspired by The Board of Trade

Mrs. J. W. Howard of 1204 S. Alfred st., Alexandria, Va., notes that people coming into Washington are welcomed over the new Highway Bridge at 30 m.p.h. while those departing from our city over the old span are kept down to 25 m.p.h. She says:

"I guess that's the City Fathers' gentle way of telling visitors we're glad to have them, and sorry to see them go."

MAIL BAG

This "letter," traced on a slab of clear plastic, arrived in the morning mail, and our art department slipped a piece of black paper behind it so that you could read it over my shoulder:



Dear Bill,
We are at our beach home for the summer but we still get the Post so we can read your good column.
Mary Cathrine Cahill
Epping Forest
Annapolis, Md.

HOARDING NOTE

Clarence H. Wills of 531 Fern pl. nw. parked his car on a downtown street one day this week. On his return, he found a business card under his windshield wiper.

The front of the card gave the name and affiliation of an auto salesman. The back carried the meaningful hint:

"Unless you think your car will last through another war, come and see me now."

Says District Liner Wills: "It's bad enough when people hoard and buy things they don't need. It's worse when salespeople act as instigators for hoarding."

GIVE-AWAYS

"Two healthy 2-month-old puppies; will be big dogs." (Warfield 0717.)

"Two-year-old watchdog; we're moving into an apartment." (Jordan 8-5019.)

"Gentle young mother cat and three cunning kittens, will be ready for adoption about August 24." (Falls Church 3449, after noon.)

"Three young lady cats and one 5-month-old kitten." (Georgia 4188.)

"Six pure white part-Spitz puppies, 5 weeks old." (Lincoln 7-4996.)

"Gentle, affectionate, housebroken kitten." (Shepherd 9247.)

"Three blue-eyed kittens will be ready for adoption about August 20." (Georgia 1526.)

"Very cute 6-week-old Maltese kitten." (Hobart 0924.)

"Young mother cat and three healthy 9-week-old kittens." (Georgia 4784.)

"Three assorted kittens, 2 months old." (Ordway 2049.)

"Two full-grown, full-blooded male Persian cats; one grown female alley cat, fine pet." (Falls Church 3392 after 9 a. m.)

"Two-year-old Shetland shepherd needs room to run." (SLigo 2870 after 5 p. m.)

Puppies are so frolicsome . . .
Full of nips and noise . . . Puppies are undoubtedly . . . Made for little boys.

Kittens are so cuddlesome . . .
Warm, and soft as curls . . .
Kittens are especially . . . Made for little girls.

Mary Ellen

PARTISAN

Pop Grey, who works for the Democratic National Committee, wonders whether any of our Give-Away donors have a healthy young elephant to offer. With this fall's elections in mind, he writes:

"The good old donkey is on his hind legs, rearin' to go, but he's embarrassed to fight such an ancient pachyderm, in extremis."

Careful there, Pop. Remember what happened in '48, when the elephant thought the donkey was not long for this world, and the syndicated columnists wrote advance pieces on what kind of President Mr. Dewey would make? There's nothing sure in politics except that the outs would like to be in.

KANDEL REVISITED

David Kandel of 1311 H st. nw. rhymed a complaint that he's a sourpuss introvert instead of the extrovert he'd like to be. Jean Broulik of 3850 39th st. nw. suggests:

Oh, David, you should go to see
An M. D. with a couch;
I'll bet, while probing for his fee,
He'd soon locate your grouch.

VAGRANT THOUGHT

Dick Fryklund of 3304 Buchanan st., Mount Rainier, Md., wonders why it is that summer suits that retain every wrinkle never seem able to hold a crease.

Korean Casualties Exceed Reports

By Drew Pearson

The American people have always known how to take the bad news along with the good, but despite this the Army is holding back the true casualty list in Korea.

Pearson

Actually the public has shown itself more alert to the menace of communism than most officials; but the Army has been nervously shielding us from the grim truth—namely, that battle casualties are 75 percent higher than announced.

This column has now seen the secret casualty list kept by the Army Surgeon-General's office. An Army spokesman insisted that all casualties have been announced to the press, but admitted that the complete list has never been tabulated. Believing that the folks at home are entitled to know how many of their men are being lost or wounded in Korea, this column has now made a careful tabulation. This shows that whereas the Army had announced 96 killed in action and 15 died of wounds up to August 1, the secret list of Army dead for the same period is 660. Whereas the Army reported only 587 wounded, the secret list shows 2975. The Army also claimed 815 missing in action, of whom 11 got back. However, the secret list shows 3000 actually missing in action.

The above figures are only Army casualties and do not include 14 Air Force men killed, 33 missing and 6 wounded. The Navy had also lost two men in action and the Marines none, as of August 1. It's about time the Army came clean with the American people and told the true story of American losses in Korea.

Loan to Spain

Allied diplomats who watched the legislative blitzkrieg that rushed the 100 million dollar loan to Dictator Franco through the Senate have expressed the private opinion that this may be a worse setback than we have suffered in Korea.

For Russia's main battle is still in the minds of men.

The diplomats who express this fear are those who have had to worry about unloading United States arms in Antwerp, Marseilles and Amsterdam, and loading arms in Australia. They are also the diplomats who have to worry whether American arms, once shipped to Europe, will ever be used in actual battle by European armies to whom Franco has become a hated symbol.

The Senators who voted 100 million dollars to Franco probably forgot that United States planes for France had to be unloaded in North Africa, because French longshoremen would not handle them.

All the war materiel we can manufacture and all the bases we might obtain in Spain through bribing Franco will mean nothing, friendly diplomats warn, if we can't get Allied troops to fire our guns.

Behind the Scenes

Here is the backstage story of what happened in the Senate which, on April 27, rejected Spanish aid by a vote of 42-35, and last week voted for Spanish aid, 65 to 15.

The me nwho pulled wires behind the scenes were Vice President Barkley's son-in-law, Max Truitt, who is the paid lobbyist of the Spanish Embassy; Charles Patrick Clark, another paid lobbyist who works through Senator Owen Brewster of Maine and Congressman Eugene Keogh of Brooklyn; and Senator Pat McCarran of Nevada, who has spent a great deal of time visiting Spain as the guest of Dictator Franco.

Extremely important also was the backstage wirepulling of Secretary Johnson and military leaders. They decided to buck what they knew was State Department policy against Franco.

It had been agreed by Democratic leaders before the Spanish debate that Senator Clinton Anderson of New Mexico would raise a point of order against McCarran's loan to Franco, since it was tacked onto an appropriation bill and since the Senate had already voted down authorization for Spanish aid.

But Democratic Leader Scott Lucas of Illinois hurriedly instructed Anderson not to raise this point of order.

After the loan was voted, Anderson backed Lucas into the hall. Lucas admitted he hadn't consulted the White House, but insisted he was helpless to stop Spanish aid. Later, Lucas called the White House, and the President, though not critical of Lucas, was most unhappy about the Franco loan. However, he won't be able to veto it without vetoing the entire appropriations bill, which would throw the governmental machinery into turmoil.

Most eloquent opponent of aid to Franco was Morse of Oregon:

"I want to say that I hate, with all my soul and being, everything that is communistic," argued Morse. "But likewise, I hate with an equal hatred everything that is Fascist . . . so far as I have been able to find, the exercise of a freedom of choice at a truly free ballot box is as nonexistent in Spain as it is in Communist Russia.

"I have not been able to bring myself in this wrestle with my conscience to vote in favor of what I think looks like a bribe to Franco for military bases," Morse shouted. "If I thought that by this loan we would save the life of a single American boy, I would pay a bribe to Franco to save that life," continued the Oregon Senator. "However, I fear that this loan will raise doubts as to our devotion to the principles of freedom. I fear that this loan will not stand the judgment of history."

Morse came off the floor, shaking his head sadly.

"I feel like resigning from the Senate," he brooded. "Most of the liberals have surrendered to their fears."
